Expected to Die.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Officers were victorious today in a miniature "war" with a bandit gang over northeastern Ohio leaving two men dead and six wounded.

There were four gun battles—one in a Youngstown restaurant, another with a deputy sheriff near Ravenna, a third in a 90-mile-an-hour chase by state highway patrolmen and the finale at a police barricade in Cleveland.

The dead are Alex Jaksic, 25, Cleveland, identified by police as one of the bandits, and Robert M. McLaren, 28, Sharon, Pa., customer in the Youngstown restaurant.

Police listed the wounded bandits as John A. Juratovac, 24, not expected to live, William Homovic, 24, and an unidentified man. The others wounded are John Varanches, 35, Youngstown, waiter; James Dionisio, 21, restaurant customer, and Rohen Fitzgerald of Ravenna, deputy sheriff.

Five In Gang.

Police said their reports indicated there were five men in the bandit gang. All were captured except the unidentified man who has an injured hand.

Police reports listed the events as follows:

The men forced Chester A. Smith, 40, from his automobile in downtown Cleveland at 1 a. m. Sunday and drove away. Three men appeared next day at Jay's restaurant on West Federal street in Youngstown.

Two men drew revolvers and the other a shotgun. Varanches grabbed a pistol and the firing began. He was wounded in the arm. McLaren, seated in a booth, slumped over as a fatal bullet struck him. His companion, Dionisio, was shot in the leg.

Put Second Traffic Signal
Back in Operation.

City officials today yielded to protests for the second time within a week, and put back in operation the traffic signal at Harker and North Mulberry streets.

The light, along with the signal at West First and Sturges avenue, had been covered early last week as council's light committee took steps to eliminate some of the 56 units in the city.

Service-safety Director C. M. Crafton Thursday ordered the light at West First and Sturges avenue placed back in operation after he was deluged with complaints by First Ward residents.

Saturday Crafton ordered the Harker and North Mulberry light uncovered after council's light committee said it had been swamped with telephone calls protesting against its removal.

Holland Fights With Guns, Men --- and Sea

Hitler's invasion of peace-loving Holland found her ready to fight. She planned to battle to the end with her fine little army, 450,000 men, her tiny, efficient air force, and her guns—then let in the sea. Her defenses:

MINES: The tree behind this sentry has an electric belt. Sentry throws a switch if an invader appears, the tree topples and mine concealed in trunk blows up road. Roads from the border and those to canals are mined.

SEA GUARDS: Day and night, since the war danger kept Holland alert, sentries like these had kept an eye peeled seaward for an enemy. The land is dotted, too, with hidden machine-gun nests, anti-aircraft and tank defenses.

HULL DEPLORES WAR'S SCIENCE

Secretary Urges Humanitarian
Use of Scientific Wonders of Modern World.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today denounced nations which have reduced science "to the sorry estate of a handmaiden of oppression and brute force" and called on the nations of the western hemisphere to preserve free thought and untrammelled science for the benefit of all humanity.

Addressing the first plenary session of the eighth American Scientific Congress, Hull said that the Americas "deeply deplore the fact that a blighting shadow of cultural eclipse has temporarily fallen on so many countries in other parts of the world."

"Human progress is impossible without a strong moral and spiritual foundation," he said. "A nation which curbs freedom of thought or denies the dignity of the human soul dooms itself inevitably to decadence."

"Today we witness a stark demonstration of the possibilities of anti-social and anti-moral use of the achievements of science. Weapons made possible by great scientific discoveries and by marvelous technological development have been created, and are being created and wielded, by some nations in pursuit of policies of aggression and aggrandizement. This pursuit compels other nations to create and wield similar weapons in defense or in preparation for defense."

"In some nations, science has been reduced to the sorry estate of a handmaiden of oppression and brute force."

Hull said that it was the task of "responsible" citizenship everywhere to create conditions under which scientific progress will serve predominantly constructive rather than destructive social and moral ends.

"For neither social organization directed toward ensuring the greatest numbers, nor the cultural (Continued on Page 14, Col. 5)

President Ready To Ask for More Cash for Defense

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt plans to send to congress this week a recommendation for more money for national defense.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said the president at this time had no specific amount in mind.

Already pending before congress are requests for upwards of two billion dollars for defense requirements in the year starting July 1. There has been conjecture that Mr. Roosevelt, in view of needs emphasized by the war abroad, might request another 500 million dollars.

It appeared likely that stronger mobile defense forces to safeguard the western hemisphere at any threatened point would figure in any revised estimates of armaments.

WATER: This is Holland's last line of defense. Her main hope was that border guards and forts, mined roads and all, would hold invaders back long enough for the dikes to be opened and the flood to pour in—and for help to arrive.

Boy, 10, Run Over By Car But Suffered Only a Scratch

A 10-year-old Troy township boy who escaped with only a scratch when run over by an automobile yesterday was the victim of a lone weekend traffic accident in Richland county. Elsewhere in the state at least 11 persons were killed.

Gerald Bigler, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bigler, R. D. 1, Lexington, was struck by an automobile driven by Richard Banks, R. D. 1, Lexington, sheriff's deputies said.

Banks told officers the boy ran out in the road while playing and he was unable to stop the car in time to avoid hitting him. The child had the presence of mind, however, to keep down under the car until it had passed completely over him. None of the wheels struck him.

The boy, treated by a Lexington physician, suffered only a scratch on the forehead. The accident occurred two miles east of Lexington on a county road.

Several Mansfielders were among the 10,000 spectators who saw a race driver crash to his death at Tiffin when his car overturned at a turn while driving in the national championship circuit race.

He was Herbert Mangus, 45, of Fremont, veteran racer, who hurtled his speedster through the fence on the half-mile dirt track at the Seneca county fair ground.

A former Tiffin taxicab driver, Mangus is survived by his parents, his wife and two small children.

THREE ESCAPE

Boys Waiting to Testify in Murder Trial Disappear

LANCASTER—(UP)—Officials of the Boys' Industrial school today searched for three inmates who walked away from Nash cottage last night. The boys are Herman Chester, 17, Franklin; Herbert Allen, 19, Cambridge; and Thomas Little, 17, Middletown.

All three had been subpoenaed to testify at the first-degree murder trial of William S. Hart, 18, Middletown, a fellow inmate, charged with the slaying of Axel Stromstead, school tailor.

RECORD FIELD OF CANDIDATES WAITS PRIMARY

Campaigns Brought to Close,
Office-Seekers Leave Rest
Up to Voters.

LITTLE INTEREST SHOWN

10,000 Expected to March to County Polls But More
If It Rains.

Hundreds of candidates in the county and state—one of the largest crops in years—put the final touches on their campaigns today as an estimated 1,600,000 Ohio voters prepared to go to the polls Tuesday to choose party nominees for the November election.

Last minute charges and suits stirred some interest in the campaign, but voters generally have paid little attention to the campaigning.

It was estimated that 10,000 voters will go to the polls in Richland county, but if rain should make it impossible for farmers to work in the fields, the vote may go higher than that, observers said. Good weather will keep them at work, on which they are behind.

Polls will open at 6:30 a. m. tomorrow in the county's 92 precincts and will close at 6:30 p. m. Because of the size of the ballots, election workers are anticipating an all-night session of tabulating the vote.

In a last-minute change today, the voting booth in precinct B of the Second ward was shifted to the Jones Funeral home, 681 Park avenue west, from the E. W. Dann home, 41 Parkwood boulevard.

Only three contests in Richland county have created much interest, two in the Democratic ranks and one on the Republican side.

Four candidates have waged a heated battle for the Democratic nomination for clerk of courts and the outcome of the contest has stumped most of the political forecasters. Opposing Clerk Fred R. Zellner for the nomination are Joe W. Piper, J. A. Jacot, and Recorder Howard Wenning.

The Democratic probate court race also has provided some fireworks, with Prosecutor G. W. Marriott, Atty. A. S. Beach, and Atty. A. B. Mabey seeking the nomination.

In the G. O. P. ranks interest is centered in the sheriff's race with six candidates seeking the nomination. County organization leaders predict Frank D. Deringer will get the nomination.

Charges of "vote-buying" in Pickaway county, south of Columbus, today brought an order from Secretary of State George M. Nefzette to the Pickaway county sheriff to make arrests or "take such steps you may deem necessary to prevent the corruption of the exercise of the right of franchise."

State Republican Chairman Ed D. Schorr predicted today that Republicans will out-vote the Democrats in tomorrow's primary, although the Democrats led in 1936 and 1938 and have a keen governor's race to stir interest this year.

Even War Can't Stop News-Journal Election Party

Although the war in Europe has been claiming most of everyone's attention, probably no one has lost sight of the fact that tomorrow is another election day—the primaries in which party choices are to be made for county, state and national candidates.

It's a big election—as big as has ever been held, from the standpoint of the number of candidates in it.

Returns will probably be tabulated slowly, but The News-Journal will stay on the job until the count is complete.

The now-familiar silver screen will be in place, and returns will be flashed on it as fast as they are received. The News-Journal will cover the Richland county vote, while state-wide returns will be supplied by the Associated Press.

Come down to The News-Journal office and watch the returns as they are posted—or call Canal 4251 for the latest tabulations.

The mercury zoomed up to summer levels again today after nearly a week of chilly temperatures, but the weatherman said showers will bring cooler weather back tomorrow.

Farmers who had too much rain in March and April were wishing for showers today to give their new crops a boost. The wind has dried out the earth rapidly, and county farmers said their oats and garden crops need moisture badly.

Germans Resume Merciless Bombing of Invaded Territory; Allies Stab Back With Counter-Blows at Nazi Air Supremacy

BULLETIN

LONDON — (UP) — Queen Wilhelmina landed in England today.

(By International News Service)

Hurling their full strength behind the stubborn but unavailing Belgian resistance, British and French forces engaged in a desperate battle on the largest scale since the World war on the eastern Belgian frontier today.

And on that battle the fate of Belgium is hanging today as Germans advanced through a gap pounded in the Belgian defenses.

While the Nazi air force resumed its merciless bombing of invaded territory, French military spokesmen said that Germany was rushing her heaviest materials into the arena for a "grand smash" in a week or 10 days.

Nazi forces claim to have marched into the important fortified city of Liege, seizing the city's main citadel, but this claim was discounted by the Allies.

All through the Ardenns-Liege Maastricht area where the fighting was fiercest, allied forces arrived in steadily increasing numbers and fought shoulder-to-shoulder with the Belgian defenders. The great Belgian forts at Liege and Namur are still holding out, the Allies said, although the Germans claimed capture of the Liege citadel.

The Allies stabbed with counter-blow after counter-blow at Germany's air supremacy. German tanks and mechanized columns were reported thwarted in their forward thrust at Tongres as a wave of fresh confidence swept all Belgium.

REINFORCED: Italy Calls New Reserves to Strengthen Army

ROME—(AP)—In the midst of a rising anti-allied campaign, Italy busily reinforced her Littorio line of fortified positions along the western Alpine frontier facing France today and, according to Italian sources, called out additional reservists to reinforce her army of 1,250,000 men.

There were two major expressions of anti-allied sentiment, one a series of student demonstrations that brought out 500 soldiers and police to protect the British and French embassies, the other continued propaganda against British-French control over shipping in the Mediterranean.

Students who had marched through the streets with an Italian flag dispersed after spectators said they had heard them shouting for war.

In addition, Catholic sources announced that English and Scottish seminaries for student priests were being closed and that the Belgian seminary had been closed.

No confirmation of the call for fresh reservists was available in authoritative quarters on the (Continued on Page 3, Col. 3)

CONFIDENCE: Churchill Given Full Support in Commons Vote

LONDON—(UP)—The house of commons today voted in the government of Winston Churchill after the prime minister in a speech had said that "we are in the preliminary phase of one of the greatest battles in history."

The vote of confidence came on a motion introduced by Churchill himself and saying that "this house welcomes the formation of a government representing the united, inflexible resolve of the nation to prosecute the war with Germany to a victorious conclusion."

Churchill's new war government received a confidence vote of 381 to 0.

He said that "we are in the preliminary phase of one of the greatest battles in history" and pointed out that proof of the nation's unity rested in the formation of a five-man war cabinet representing all political parties.

"Our aim is victory at all costs," Churchill said, "no matter how long and hard the road."

Third Term Campaign Sweeps Ahead on War Spread

POLITICIANS EXPECT F. D. R. TO RUN AGAIN

Final Statement by President
Seen Unlikely Until Time
For Convention.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The campaign to renominate President Roosevelt swept ahead today amid mounting capital opinion that the European war spread had increased the possibility of his running again.

Many politicians in Washington have felt for months that the president's ultimate announcement of his third term views would depend in large measure on the foreign situation.

For this reason, they are more ready than ever to believe that he will withhold a statement accepting or rejecting renomination until it actually has been tendered, or at least until the eve of the Democratic convention July 15.

Senator Reed (R-Kans.) told reporters that if the Republicans "can't beat Roosevelt on two issues—the third term and involvement in the European war—then we can't beat anyone." Reed asserted the president's reelection "would surely mean taking part in the European war."

Iowa was added Saturday night to the states whose Democratic delegations have been pledged to Mr. Roosevelt.

On the same day, a majority of county delegates for the forthcoming Oklahoma and North Carolina State conventions were instructed to vote for a Roosevelt slate.

The president is expected to receive the support of the big Ohio delegation to be chosen in a primary tomorrow, although it will be pledged nominally to National Committeeman Charles Sawyer.

Ohio Republicans will select a delegation favoring Robert A. Taft, the state's junior senator. Although this will be Taft's first pledged delegation—aside from two votes in North Carolina—his managers have contended that he will enter the convention with more votes than Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who now leads in instructed delegates.

Supporters of Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich.) said last night that J. Sam White of North Carolina, regional director for the Republican program committee in eight southeastern states, had endorsed Vandenberg for the presidential nomination.

Seventeen states and the District of Columbia will choose delegations to one or both party conventions this week.

Interest in West Virginia voting has centered on battles for the Democratic senatorial and gubernatorial nominations rather than on the presidential primary, where no major candidates are entered in either party. Rush Holt, the youngest senator, is seeking Democratic renomination.

Ohio Peach Crop Expected to be A 'Near Failure'

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio's peach crop will be a "near failure" due to severe winter and spring snowstorms, the Ohio Cooperative Crop Reporting service said today.

It expressed belief, however, that other fruits had not been damaged seriously.

The prospective wheat crop was estimated at 36,537,000 1.5 per cent less than 1939 and nine per cent under the 1939-38 average.

The rice outlook was 1,148,000 bushels, as compared with 1,232,000 in 1939.

The prospect for hay stocks has shrunk to 358,000 tons, as compared with 595,000 a year ago, due to the late arrival of warm weather.

Ohio's maple syrup harvest was reported as 332,000 gallons, 48,000 under 1939.

DIES SUNDAY IN HOME OF SISTER

Miss Rachel Blocher, 85, Had Been Ill a Week.

ASHLAND — Miss Rachel E. Blocher, 85, died here Sunday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ida Richards, after an illness of one week.

Born Sept. 13, 1854 in Maryland, Miss Blocher had lived in Ashland county since 1887. She was a member of Trinity Lutheran church here.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Ryland of Bucyrus and Mrs. Richards of Ashland, and a brother, Alvin Blocher at home.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at the Richards home with Rev. A. H. Smith officiating, assisted by Rev. C. A. Helm and Rev. T. S. Mohrman, a cousin. Burial will be in Dickey cemetery.

War Hits Americans In Tax Pocket Book

Up and Down THE STREET

A trip to Oklahoma City last week by Floyd Dent, area Scout executive, and two other officials, to attend the 30th annual National Boy Scout council meeting, has turned into a tour of the western part of the country by the trio, according to word received at scout headquarters this morning. Saturday they left for Cimarron, N. M., where they will visit the Philturn Rocky Mountain Boy Scout camp there. The camp covers 3,500 acres and is owned by the national council.

Mansfield police were breaking in a new cruiser today. Delivered Saturday by the R. E. Moorhead Ford agency, the new patrol car will replace a four-year-old model that had more than 100,000 miles to its credit. Besides being bulletproof the new car has all of the necessary police accessories, including first aid kits, radio, fire extinguisher and gun racks. Council authorized the purchase several weeks ago and appropriated $900 for the car.

Scores of fish which were placed in Maple Lake several days ago after they were rescued from flood backwaters above Charles Mill dam couldn't survive their new environment and floated dead today on the lake. Frank R. Burton, city parks superintendent, said they apparently were injured while being transported to the lake or were out of water too long. He said the dead fish, mostly carp, would be taken out of the lake today. A number of the fish, including catfish and bass, are still alive in the lake, and Burton hopes to get it well stocked before the end of the summer.

Courthouse visitors who have been having a lot of trouble with the "surprise" steps at the north and west entrances to the basement lobby will have something to hang onto now. Over the week-end shiny brass rails were erected at the two short stairways by Anton Moritz, courthouse custodian, who said a number of persons have fallen on the steps in recent weeks. The polished basement floor gives the illusion that the floor is level with the entrances, but the offices are lower than the street level.

DIES AT AGE 91

Jacob Windolph Had Lived In Galion for 57 Years.

GALION—Jacob Windolph, 91, died early today at his home of a cerebral hemorrhage. He has been bedfast for the past three weeks. He was born in Germany Dec. 28, 1849, and came to this country 57 years ago, residing in Galion since that time. He was married to Katherine Heiser in 1888. She died in January, 1938.

Surviving is one son, William of Chillicothe.

Mr. Windolph was a member of the First Reformed church, and was a retired engine hoist, formerly with the Erie railroad.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Snyder funeral home in charge of Rev. R. R. Elliker of the First Reformed church. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery. The body is at the Snyder funeral home.

HAYESVILLE MAN TAKEN BY DEATH

Sylvanus Coble, Brother of Mansfield Woman, Dies.

HAYESVILLE—Sylvanus Coble died here Saturday after an illness of about four weeks.

He is survived by his wife, Lydia, a daughter, Ethel; a brother in Tippecanoe City, and three sisters. The sisters are Mrs. Chloa Harpster, 89 West Third street, Mansfield; Mrs. Flora Hosteller, Funk; Mrs. Allie Bryan, Akron; Mrs. Ida Leech, Hayesville; Mrs. Emma Vanderhoff, Findlay; Mrs. Elsie Spreng, Jeromesville; Mrs. Sylvia Springer, Lake Fork and Mrs. Bertha Atterholt, Nova.

Funeral services will be held at the Fickes funeral home in Jeromesville at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Hayesville cemetery.

Five Are Charged With Unsafe Operation of Cars; Face Various Area Courts.

Six motorists, three from Mansfield, were cited for traffic violations in this area over the week-end by state highway patrolmen and city police. Five were charged with unsafe driving and one with driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Given citations on charges of unsafe driving by the patrol were Lloyd Whittier, 18, 324 McPherson street, Paul E. Lightfoot, 19, of Ashland, and Gerald Kunkel of Lucas. Whittier, arrested early Sunday morning, is scheduled to be arraigned in municipal court Wednesday morning, and Lightfoot, arrested last night on route 42, south of Ashland, was to be arraigned this morning before Justice of Peace R. R. Teeter in Ashland. Kunkel will be arraigned in municipal court Saturday morning. He was arrested on route 13 at 10:30 p. m. Saturday.

Mervin Dill, 28, of Belleville, was fined $100 and costs when arraigned before Mayor W. R. Morris of Shelby, this morning on charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated. He was arrested by the patrol in Shelby early Sunday.

Cited by police and arraigned in municipal court this morning on charges of reckless driving, J. D. Au, R. D. 2, Mansfield, and Paul Fox, 20 Lily street, were each fined $10 and costs. Both pleaded guilty. Fox was arrested on North Franklin avenue and Au on Park avenue east. The arrests were made Saturday night and Sunday.

MONEY NEEDED FOR DEFENSE TO HIKE DEBT

Credits to Allies Looming as Subject for Bitter Dispute In Congress.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—The European war today is about to hit the American taxpayer in the pocket book, jeopardize treasury spending calculations, and involve the nation in bitter argument over extending credit to the Allied powers.

Keeping out of war is going to cost a lot of money.

First new war charge against the American taxpayer probably will be a national defense expansion program which may get under way this week with a request for $500,000,000 above the $2,000,000,000 already requested for that purpose in the next fiscal year. If $500,000,000 is added to immediate national defense costs the national debt probably will zoom past the existing $45,000,000 debt limit.

The sharpest congressional contest which also probably can be postponed but cannot be avoided is coming on the question of credits to the Allies. They are doubly forbidden now by the neutrality act which puts exports business to belligerents on a cash and carry basis and by the Johnson act which forbids credit to war debt defaulters.

Great Britain, France and Belgium are barred from credits on both counts and Holland is on a cash basis because she is a belligerent.

President Roosevelt warns that the Germans and ideologically aligned forces at work in Europe are headed ultimate toward an attempt at world conquest if they are not defeated. The temper of congress is strongly pro-Ally. Popular feeling seems to be heavily weighted against Germany, the Soviet Union—on the Asiatic front—Japan.

But majority sentiment has not swung yet toward extending credit as well as sympathy to the Allies.

Both agreed the parting was amicable. Mrs. Temple said she was concerned because stories "to suit the new growing-up phase in Shirley's life" had not been found. She added that she felt her daughter was entitled to "those normal, natural benefits that may be derived from mingling and competing with a large number of other children."

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Mother's Day on Broadway.

It has been years since a stage mama was considered as necessary to an actress as a make-up box, and a long time since audiences wept at Al Jolson singing "Mammy" on one knee, but Mother Macchree is still on the Broadway hit parade, and more Broadwayites than you would suspect have ink-stained fingers from writing home to mother, even if it's only for a touch.

Some of the more celebrated figures from Shubert Alley, Sardi's and the mazda marquees Owe It All To Ma, and admit it, autobiographically, in the fan magazines.

Some are their mamas' constant companions to the point where it is a slight shock to see half of the combination in Lindy's without the other. Some use their mums as willing stooges. And in a few cases, the mothers have become greater personalities than their starring offspring.

The mother in widest circulation around the bright light area these days (and she has held the palm for several seasons) is Milton Berle's mama, Sarah, whose face is as familiar to the cafe head-waters as Peggy Hopkins Joyce's, and whose existence is as well known to audiences as that of Joe Penner's duck. . . . "Mom" has been in show business, vicariously but energetically, for 26 years—or as long as Milton has—and when he does five shows a day in vaudeville she does five shows a day in vaudeville. She does them from the opposite side of the footlights, but she does them.

It was the late Jack Osterman who said, when Milton headlined at the Palace in 1929:

"Milton's mother was so mad at him yesterday she sat behind a post for two hours."

Mom is almost a carbon copy of Milton's gags about her, or perhaps the gags are a reasonable facsimile of Mom, but for years attributed to her have been making table-sitters giggle all along the Broadway gravine.

Recently she was ill, and florists' messengers kept arriving until 53 baskets, vases, and pots of flowers were crowded into the room.

Mom looked around at the posies, shrugged, and said: "To get so many flowers, you have to have a lot of friends—or be a dead gangster!"

Mitzi Green's mother, Rosie, who is an old trouper herself, is one of the perfect backstage mamas and managers. Since Mitzi was a baby star, she has been

HUBBELL LOSES

Denied Court Move to Prevent Counting Davey Ballots.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Charles Hubbell's attempt to have the Supreme court restrain the election boards of the seven largest counties from counting the democratic primary vote for Martin L. Davey collapsed today when the high court refused to grant an alternative writ of prohibition.

With the primary to be held tomorrow, court observers said virtually no avenue remains open by which Hubbell could achieve his goal.

In filing his suit Saturday he charged that Davey had forfeited any claim to the gubernatorial nomination through "excessive" campaign expenditures.

Hubbell is a candidate for the democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Mother's Day on Broadway.

It has been years since a stage mama was considered as necessary to an actress as a make-up box, and a long time since audiences wept at Al Jolson singing "Mammy" on one knee, but Mother Macchree is still on the Broadway hit parade, and more Broadwayites than you would suspect have ink-stained fingers from writing home to mother, even if it's only for a touch.

Some of the more celebrated figures from Shubert Alley, Sardi's and the mazda marquees Owe It All To Ma, and admit it, autobiographically, in the fan magazines.

Some are their mamas' constant companions to the point where it is a slight shock to see half of the combination in Lindy's without the other. Some use their mums as willing stooges. And in a few cases, the mothers have become greater personalities than their starring offspring.

The mother in widest circulation around the bright light area these days (and she has held the palm for several seasons) is Milton Berle's mama, Sarah, whose face is as familiar to the cafe head-waters as Peggy Hopkins Joyce's, and whose existence is as well known to audiences as that of Joe Penner's duck. . . . "Mom" has been in show business, vicariously but energetically, for 26 years—or as long as Milton has—and when he does five shows a day in vaudeville she does five shows a day in vaudeville. She does them from the opposite side of the footlights, but she does them.

It was the late Jack Osterman who said, when Milton headlined at the Palace in 1929:

"Milton's mother was so mad at him yesterday she sat behind a post for two hours."

Mom is almost a carbon copy of Milton's gags about her, or perhaps the gags are a reasonable facsimile of Mom, but for years attributed to her have been making table-sitters giggle all along the Broadway gravine.

Recently she was ill, and florists' messengers kept arriving until 53 baskets, vases, and pots of flowers were crowded into the room.

Mom looked around at the posies, shrugged, and said: "To get so many flowers, you have to have a lot of friends—or be a dead gangster!"

Mitzi Green's mother, Rosie, who is an old trouper herself, is one of the perfect backstage mamas and managers. Since Mitzi was a baby star, she has been

HUBBELL LOSES

Denied Court Move to Prevent Counting Davey Ballots.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Charles Hubbell's attempt to have the Supreme court restrain the election boards of the seven largest counties from counting the democratic primary vote for Martin L. Davey collapsed today when the high court refused to grant an alternative writ of prohibition.

With the primary to be held tomorrow, court observers said virtually no avenue remains open by which Hubbell could achieve his goal.

In filing his suit Saturday he charged that Davey had forfeited any claim to the gubernatorial nomination through "excessive" campaign expenditures.

Hubbell is a candidate for the democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

McLemore Finds Yankees Sickly and Sorrowful

By HENRY McLEMORE
NEW YORK — (AP) — Being a country boy who was brought up to believe that it was neighborly to call on sick friends, I paid a visit yesterday to the New York Yankees in their dugout, just before their game with the Boston Red Sox.

The Yankees had lost eight straight games, which meant they really were sick folk. I felt almost ashamed, when I sat down among them on the bench, and realized I had come empty-handed without even so much as a little jar of calves-foot jelly or some chicken broth.

There they sat, all in a row, from water cooler to water cooler, the world champion Yankees who once had only to throw their gloves on the field to conquer any enemy. With a team batting average that would shame a twi-light league club they were the Bronx cap pistols not the Bronx bombers.

"Glad to see ya," greeted Lefty Gomez when I walked in. "Pull up a chair. Stay around a while. The chances are that you'll get to pinch hit before the afternoon is over."

"What's that about hitting?" asked Joe Gordon. "What's a hit, anyway? I've forgotten what the word means. You know, when my baby is born in August what I plan to give him for a present. At least, what I'd like to give him. Well, I'll tell you—a scratch single through the infield."

Bill Dickey suggested that I ask McCarthy about the "long-haired fellow" who came in to see him in the dressing room before the team came out on the field. "He was a psychologist or something," Dickey said. "His name was Applebaum or Applebeem or pretty close to that. The Yankee manager volunteered. 'He's a real psychologist all right. Does lectures and stuff like that. A baseball nut, too. Hasn't missed a stadium game in years. Said he knew that our trouble was mental, and I agreed with him, except I told him there wasn't anything wrong that a few base knocks wouldn't cure."

"What did he say to that?" I asked.

"Well, he said he had a picture of what was wrong with the Yankees," McCarthy said. "He figured our players were looking at the players on the other team through the right end of a telescope, which made them appear big, and looking at themselves through the wrong end, which made them look small. Said what they needed was to turn the telescope around."

"Maybe our guys been hitting with telescopes," said Red Rolfe. "Maybe I'd do better with a telescope than I do with a bat. I think I'll try that out."

"Who you want in the bullpen, Joe," asked Coach Art Fletcher.

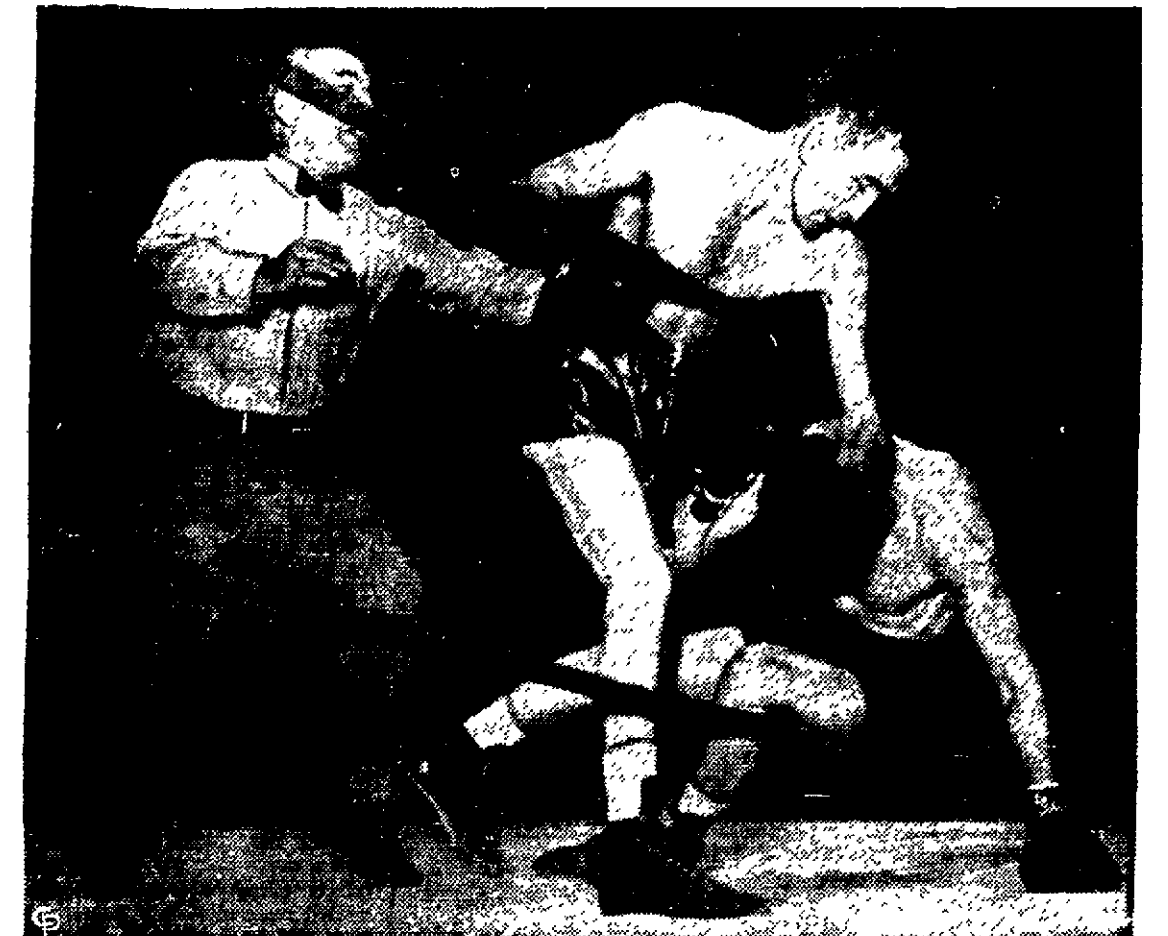

"Let's see," the boss mused. "We'll try Donald and Sunda. But I don't think Red will need 'em."

Red didn't need them, either. The Red that is Ruffing, went out and blanked the Red Sox, beating them 4 to 0.

'Bimmie' Still Talked About

Nag or Super Horse—That Is the Question.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Belmont and Bimelech seem to go together naturally, and by the time "turf headquarters" winds up its 24-day spring meeting which starts this afternoon, it should be seen whether Bimmie is the super horse he looked to be after winning the Preakness last Saturday or "the nag" he was after losing the derby the week before.

There's no doubt that Col. E. R. Bradley's three-year-old is the most talked-of horse in training right now.

Beaten in the derby by the 35-1 outsider, Gallahadon, Bimelech came back at Pimlico Saturday to score a smashing victory in the golden jubilee Preakness before 50,000 fans.

But some tracksters want to see him in one more real test—the rich Belmont stakes June 8—before they decide finally.

Bimelech then probably will face about the same field he conquered in the Preakness when Gallahadon was third.

Mansfield Defeats Mudhens

By CHARLES MARTIN
COMBING the offerings of two Tiffin moundsmen for 16 hits the Mansfield Braves are back in the win column today after pounding out a one-sided, 14 to 6, triumph over the Mudhens before approximately 500 spectators at the Fairground yesterday.

The victory enabled the Braves to gain a full game on the pace-making Findlay Oilers and left them in a three-way tie for third place with Tiffin and Fostoria. Mansfield is two games behind the Oilers in the Ohio State league championship race.

The Mansfield club entertains Fostoria at 8:15 p. m. today under the floodlights at the Fairground and Dick Otto, 19-year-old hurler, will toe the rubber for the Braves. The Red Birds will be seeking their fourth straight win.

Tonight's contest is the first of three night games for the Braves at the Fairground this week. They entertain Fremont Wednesday and Tiffin again Friday night. It'll be "Ladies' night" Friday.

Mansfield spotted Tiffin to a run lead in the opening frame yesterday, but staged a seven-run rally in the third inning to take an advantage that was never seriously threatened.

Ten Braves marched to the plate in that inning as Mansfield collected seven hits, including a lusty triple by Harry Seigbert.

Meanwhile, Bob Arnold, a righthander, who was with the club the first half of the 1939 season, was handcuffing the Mudhens with telling results.

From the second frame until the seventh Tiffin failed to get a hit. The Mudhens managed to score once in the eighth and bunched five hits to push over four tallies in the ninth.

After taking a 7 to 1 lead the Braves were not satisfied. They got to Homer Buss, a rookie, for four more markers in the fifth. At this point Joseph, rightfielder, came to the hill and worked the last three innings. Mansfield added a run in the seventh and two in the eighth.

Mansfield helped Arnold out with two timely double plays. Dick Morse, Bill Padar and Seigbert clicked off the first one in the fourth, and Morse and Seigbert completed the other in the fifth. Cassini, Tiffin shortstop, turned in two spectacular catches. In the third he pulled the hidden ball trick, catching Arnold standing off second base.

Connie Zerman, Manager Dewey Stover and Arnold carried the Braves' potent artillery yesterday. Zerman had a triple and two singles, Arnold a double and a pair of base knocks, and Stover had three singles in four trips to the plate. Stover added two stolen bases to his credit.

Tiffin secured 10 hits off Arnold's slants and only two were for extra bases—doubles by Sander and Kudrycki. Mansfield's 16 hits were good for 21 bases. It was Arnold's second win in as many starts.

Indians Are Set to Tackle Eastern Clubs

Cleveland Enjoying Holiday; Feller Scheduled to Face Philadelphia Team.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians had their first scheduled day off today—the calm before the storm of invasion by all the eastern teams.

Bob Feller is due to deal to the Philadelphia Athletics tomorrow in the first of their two games here. Then come Washington for three games, New York for three, and Boston for two, all in succession.

The Tribe remained in second place a game and a half behind Boston after its 5 to 2 defeat Sunday by St. Louis.

Elden Auker maintained his old jinx over the Indians by being tough with men on the bases and personally rapping out three hits. Mel Harder did his first long stretch of mound duty and proved himself fit, although charged with the loss. He went in after Willis Hudlin had been slugged for two runs in the second inning, and finished the game.

A walk, a bunt and double earned a Cleveland run in the second and the Tribe tied the score in the seventh on two doubles by Ray Mack and Lou Boudreau.

Beau Bell misjudged Rip Radcliff's drive into the right field corner and it went for a triple. Radcliff then put the Browns ahead by scoring on a fly.

High School Athletes Set For Carnival

Battle to See Who's Eligible For State Meets.

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's thousands of high school athletes take their four-sport tests this week-end, to determine which are eligible for the track, baseball, golf and tennis finals at Ohio State University's athletic plant May 24-25.

Qualifiers in all four sports are scheduled on a host of fronts this week, with 10 track, nine baseball, and seven golf and tennis eliminations on the program.

With the various independent relays out of the way, nothing has occurred to change the impression that Cleveland East Tech and Columbus North will battle it out late this month for the state class A track and field title, just as they did a year ago.

In 1939 East Tech nosed out Columbus North by the slimmest margin in the meet's history, 35 1-6 to 35.

The two favorites have showed power this year, East Tech winning the Mansfield and Salem relays, while Columbus North walked off with the Ohio Wesleyan and Newark championships.

Winners of the first three places in the track-field events in the district meets will be eligible for competition in the state tourney, with all competition being divided into class A and class B.

The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.
It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Batter Up! Here's How Blind Men Play 'Cable Ball' Contest

2 The pitcher, at a signal from the umpire (not blind), whips the ring toward the batter, 35 feet away, with a steel rod. The pitcher also acts as the first baseman.

3 The batter uses his sense of hearing to determine when to swing. He attempts to drive the ring past the grasping gloves of the three fielders who also depend on hearing alone.

4 The hitter, shown running to first, is awarded a single if the pitcher stops the ring but does not return it to the catcher before the batter reaches the first base post.

5 If the ring gets to the second baseman, shown grabbing it at the batter beats his throw the hit is a double—a triple if third man fails. If all fielders miss it's a home run.

HEROES—walter Brown New York Giants pitcher whose effective relief work enabled the Giants to score their fifth straight win. Red Ruffing New York Yankee hurler, who shut out Boston to snap the Yanks' eight game losing streak.

GOATS—Dray Dean Chicago Cubs twirler who was knocked out of the box in the second as he failed for the fifth time to regain his old form; Outfielder Earl Averill of Detroit, whose error helped the Chicago White Sox subside the tilters.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK (AP)—Rumor foundry: Larry MacPhail will transfer the Brooklyn Montreal farm to Long Island—probably Mineola—if he can get the consent of the Yankees and Giants.

It will be Promoter James J. Braddock soon—at Paterson, N. J. . . . Good old Max Baer goes for a buck as fast as anyone, but he is said to have turned down a guarantee of $30,000 per year to turn wrestler.

Tom Harmon, Michigan's all-America halfback, is waiting on tables in an Ann Arbor frat house to get meat and potatoes for himself.

'Bimmie' Still Talked About

Nag or Super Horse—That Is the Question.

NEW YORK (AP)—Belmont and Bimelech seem to go together naturally, and by the time "turf headquarters" winds up its 24-day spring meeting which starts this afternoon, it should be seen whether Bimmie is the super horse he looked to be after winning the Preakness last Saturday or "the nag" he was after losing the derby the week before.

There's no doubt that Col. E. R. Bradley's three-year-old is the most talked-of horse in training right now.

Beaten in the derby by the 35-1 outsider, Gallahadion, Bimelech came back at Pimlico Saturday to score a smashing victory in the golden jubilee Preakness before 50,000 fans.

But some tracksters want to see him in one more real test—the rich Belmont stakes June 8—before they decide finally.

Bimelech then probably will face about the same field he conquered in the Preakness when Gallahadion was third.

Mansfield Defeats Mudhens

By CHARLES MARTIN

COMBING the offerings of two Tiffin moundsmen for 16 hits the Mansfield Braves are back in the win column today after pounding out a one-sided, 14 to 6, triumph over the Mudhens before approximately 500 spectators at the Fairground yesterday.

The victory enabled the Braves to gain a full game on the pace-making Findlay Oilers and left them in a three-way tie for third place with Tiffin and Fostoria. Mansfield is two games behind the Oilers in the Ohio State league championship race.

The Mansfield club entertains Fostoria at 8:15 p. m. today under the floodlights at the Fairground and Dick Otto, 19-year-old hurler, will toe the rubber for the Braves. The Red Birds will be seeking their fourth straight win.

Tonight's contest is the first of three night games for the Braves at the Fairground this week. They entertain Fremont Wednesday and Tiffin again Friday night. It'll be "Ladies' night" Friday.

Mansfield spotted Tiffin to a run lead in the opening frame yesterday, but staged a seven-run rally in the third inning to take an advantage that was never seriously threatened.

Ten Braves marched to the plate in that inning as Mansfield collected seven hits, including a lusty triple by Harry Seibert.

Indians Are Set to Tackle Eastern Clubs

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians had their first scheduled day off today—the calm before the storm of invasion by all the eastern teams.

Bob Feller is due to deal to the Philadelphia Athletics tomorrow in the first of their two games here. Then come Washington for three games, New York for three, and Boston for two, all in succession.

The Tribe remained in second place a game and a half behind Boston after its 5 to 2 defeat Sunday by St. Louis.

Elden Auker maintained his old jinx over the Indians by being tough with men on the bases and personally rapping out three hits. Mel Harder did his first long stretch of mound duty and proved himself fit, although charged with the loss. He went in after Willis Hudlin had been seconded for two runs in the second inning, and finished the game.

A walk, a bunt and double earned a Cleveland run in the second and the Tribe tied the score in the seventh on two doubles by Ray Mack and Lou Boudreau.

Beau Bell misjudged Rip Radcliff's drive into the right field corner and it went for a triple. Radcliff then put the Browns ahead by scoring on a fly.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If the bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You feel constipated. You feel sour, rank and the world looks black.
It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Batter Up! Here's How Blind Men Play 'Cable Ball' Contest

2 The pitcher, at a signal from the umpire (not blind), whips the ring forward and the batter, 35 feet away, with a steel rod. The pitcher also acts as the first baseman.

3 The batter uses his sense of hearing to determine when to swing. He attempts to drive the ring past the grasping gloves of the three fielders who also depend on hearing alone.

4 The batter, shown running to first, is awarded a single if the pitcher stops the ring but does not return it to the catcher before the batter reaches the first base post.

5 If the ring gets to the second and baseman, shown grabbing at it, and the batter beats his throw the hit is a double, a triple if third man fails. If all fielders miss it's a home run.

War's Biggest Battle Carries Belgium Fate

France Hears Nazis Rush Equipment For Grand Smash Planned Within Week or Ten Days

in Rotterdam, Amsterdam and The Hague—sorely beset by German parachutists—was still obscure. Other reports claimed successes for the Dutch defenders against the invaders from the sky.

Not since the American troops began the final drive on the western front in 1918 has any area of the world reverberated with such artillery concentration as poured shell after shell on the defending Belgians today. The artillery was backed by sweeping attacks by German bombers.

Air raid alarms continued to scream incessantly in central France throughout the night, and Paris was driven to shelter at 1:25 p. m. today as bombers roared overhead.

New Dutch withdrawals from the west of Gelderland were announced in Amsterdam.

The French communiqué stated the Germans were attacked with redoubled intensity, particularly near the North Albert canal and on the Luxembourg frontier.

Great Britain, announcing that 45 German planes had been destroyed in Belgium and Holland since Saturday and that "as many more" probably had been destroyed or damaged, took strict measures to forestall any possible "fifth column" coup in the British Isles.

Temporary internment of German and Austrian males between the ages of 16 and 60 in the eastern half of Great Britain, save for greater London, was ordered. Strict restrictions also were imposed on non-enemy aliens in the same region.

The British press called for still more stringent measures to guard against a possible assault by German parachute troops.

Germany claimed that its troops have conquered the northern half of Holland and claimed that German dive-bombers set fire to six British transports on the Dutch coast and sank a seventh.

Allies Throw Full Strength Into Path of Nazi Advance

By ROBERT G. NIXON
INS Staff Correspondent

With the British Expeditionary Forces in Belgium, (Passed by Field Censor)—A desperate battle on the largest scale since the World war, upon which the fate of Belgium depends, raged today on the eastern frontier of Belgium.

British and French forces threw their full strength into an attempt to halt the mechanized German hordes pouring through a gap smashed in the courageous but unavailing Belgian resistance.

Hammered by the greatest artillery concentration since American troops began the final drive on the western front in the fall of 1918 and subjected to the incessant drumfire of bombardment from the air, the Belgian army fought steadily while withdrawing to prepared positions on a shorter front.

German bombers overhead are dropping bombs which shake this building as I write, and anti-aircraft guns are roaring as the field-gray Nazis sweep on.

The picture is none too bright, but Belgium is not lost by any means.

The Allied forces standing in the main path of the German advance by now probably have come to grips with a tremendous impact and the outcome is in the balance.

Belgian resistance gave way under the devastating effect of overwhelming land artillery and air power.

But for the fact that two vital bridges were not blown up, the German advance probably could have been checked longer. As it was, they mushroomed outward, making the Belgian flanks untenable as towns and villages in eastern Belgium were ground to dust by incessant air bombardments which took heavy casualties.

The roads leading into the active war area are jammed with refugees on one side and advancing motorized Allied troops, carrying tanks and tanks on the other.

I watched these today in the course of a 200-mile tour of the war zone which revealed sights pathetically reminiscent of those of 1914.

Vacant-eyed women, children and old men were fleeing from the swift path of modern warfare. Some were aboard automobiles, some on push-bikes or in carts, while others plodded afoot, with the ever-present menace of death above them as German bombers constantly wheeled and circled.

Red Blankets.

Always among their hastily gathered household possessions were the red blankets of Belgian peasants. I shall never again see that crimson color without my heart stopping a beat.

My first introduction to this war came at dawn today when German bombers, lanced down from the skies, plunging bombs shook me out of bed. As I watched, one bomber was driven

German Command Claims Capture of Liege Citadel

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(INS)—While Adolf Hitler's armies swept on toward Brussels, Antwerp and Namur and stood at the gates of Rotterdam, the first move against the Maginot line was launched today with a terrific artillery salvo which allegedly drove French troops from their field positions.

BERLIN—(C) main troops have broken into strategic Liege and the German line has waved over the citadel of War Bulletins

BASEL—French artillery and allied air bombs this afternoon shattered part of the Meuse railroad tunnel under Germany's "Gibraltar of the Rhine."

PARIS—The Germans lost 400 airplanes in the first three and a half days of their new drive against the lowlands and the western front, according to an official French compilation published today.

the famous fortress since this morning, the high command announced today.

Belgian troops are fighting bitterly against the crushing German advance, however, and are offering opposition on some of the outer forts of Liege, it said.

Even as the Nazis pressed their onslaught in the lowlands towards what Germans expected to be one of the great battles of history, other Nazi forces in the west took the offensive on the French frontier.

"South and southeastward from Zweibruecken, our positions were moved forward and several hundred prisoners were taken," the high command reported from the Westwall-Magnot line front.

In Brussels, the Belgian high command declared Belgian forces had "maintained their positions everywhere" during last night but acknowledged that early today "enemy motorized forces delivered new attacks against all our positions."

(Authoritative French military sources denied that the citadel at Liege had fallen. These sources asserted that so far the only fort in the Liege zone taken by the Germans was Eben Emael.)

The high command said French troops in the lowlands were moving up and had been thrown into the area south of Liege and west of the Ourthe river, toward which it said German troops also were moving. German troops also are driving west from Liege north of the Meuse river.

The communiqué issued from Adolf Hitler's headquarters in his army said:

"The air force continues its great battle for air superiority over the western area of operations with noticeable success. In all, 320 planes were destroyed on May 12, among them 58 in air fights, 72 by anti-aircraft fire and the rest on the ground. Twenty-five planes were brought down during a British attack on Maastricht by anti-aircraft fire. A single air squadron succeeded in shooting down 16.

"Our own losses, compared to the enemy and measured by our successes, were slight again yesterday. They consisted of 31 planes.

"The enemy also suffered heavy damage at sea.

Nazi vanguards previously had been reported 13 miles west of Liege, threatening the flank of the city where Kaiser Wilhelm's army was stopped for more than a week in 1914.

Previously German sources had reported their troops at least part way into the historic forts guarding the route from the German frontier to Antwerp, on Belgium's west coast.

How German troops took the Liege citadel was not told immediately. But Germany's armies, hammering wedges into both Belgium's and Holland's defenses, have used a mysterious new weapon which, in the German opinion, may be the key to the French Maginot line fortifications.

It is credited with having caused the easy downfall of Eben Emael fortress, one of the strongest in the Liege-Albert Canal defense zone, a break in Belgian defenses which opened the way to Liege itself.

A garrison of 1,000 Belgians laid down their arms in the face of the secret Nazi weapon, it was reported.

Swiss Planes Patrol Frontier

BASEL, Switzerland—(AP)—The alert little Swiss air force, equipped with the latest model German, French and Swiss-made fighting planes, patrolled the frontier today with orders to shoot down any belligerent fliers over Swiss soil who ignored a first warning.

A foreign bombing plane was chased and hit by machinegun fire and forced to land "on territory of its own country," the Swiss press reported. Dispatches did not say what country.

Intensified aerial vigilance followed upon reports yesterday of large-scale troop movements in Germany, north of Switzerland's frontier.

The nation stood on a war footing, with between 500,000 and 600,000 citizen soldiers mobilized. Every able-bodied citizen between the ages of 20 and 60 was called to arms.

Sweden Keeps Anxious Vigil

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—Sweden kept an anxious vigil today over sea and air approaches to her territory from German bases.

(These reports were declared in Berlin to be a "stupid swindle.")

The government yesterday ordered total blackout indefinitely. A mine field has been sown in the Oresund channel, which separates Sweden and Nazi-occupied Denmark.

There were reports that German troopships were passing through the Kiel canal and rumors that a sudden air attack was feared.

The subject was brought before the senate under parliamentary rules which will make possible a final vote tomorrow afternoon.

The house already has rejected the reorganization plan. Unless the senate also disapproves however it will go into effect automatically.

The last appropriation bill to be started through the house Thursday is the president's proposal to spend $975,000,000 for relief in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Fire Started Three Straight Days in Waste Container.

NORWALK—(AP)—The family of Basil White was puzzled when fire broke out three days in succession in a waste basket in their home.

Finally, it was discovered that the sun shining through the window glass, with a lens effect, had started the fire.

Four Truck-Loads of Bees Cause Complaints.

WINCHESTER, Va.—(AP)—Four trucks parked in a residential section were moved by police after complaints poured into the office of Mayor Charles R. Anderson.

The trucks' cargo was 42 tons of honey bees, brought to Frederick county to pollinate apple orchards. The bees started investigating the neighborhood.

DEATH PROBED

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Paul Stumpf, 40-year-old president of the Vernon Auto Top Co. died early today under mysterious circumstances. Sheriff's deputies began an investigation to determine how he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and a broken ankle.

Police were told Stumpf left a night club and started after his car. He called for help and Edward Nuber, who was with him, said he found Stumpf lying in a ditch complaining of a leg in pain. Nuber drove him to a physician's office, where Stumpf was pronounced dead.

TWO KILLED IN BANDIT BATTLE

Gangsters Captured in Wild Chase Over Northeastern Ohio Highways.

forced Elmer B. Hall, a steel plant policeman, from his automobile. Hall reported one of the men had a bleeding hand. This blood-stained automobile was found later in Cleveland and police believed the wounded man returned in it.

Two bandits next appeared at the Truckers' Tavern, three miles north of Ravenna, saying they ran out of gasoline. John Gordon, proprietor, borrowed a car and drove them to their automobile. There were the other two. They robbed him of $16 and took his borrowed car.

Tavern Holdup.

The four returned to the tavern and robbed five other persons and took another automobile.

Meanwhile, Gordon called Deputy Sheriff Fitzgerald who went to the scene of Gordon's highway robbery. The bandits returned and one approached with a gun in each hand.

He and Fitzgerald fired. Fitzgerald was wounded in the leg. The gunman dropped. His companions dragged him into the car and fled.

State Patrolmen Lawrence B. Alexander and E. L. Meyer picked up the gunmen's trail three miles east of Cleveland and chased them through Shaker Heights at 90 miles an hour.

The gunmen broke out the rear windows of their car and fired constantly. Meyer knocked out his windshield and riddled the bandits' automobile with rifle bullets.

Police radio directed Cleveland squads to barricade the incoming thoroughfare. The gunmen's car sped up to the barricade, skidded around a corner and smashed into a voting booth.

Chase Ends.

Two men got out with pistols. A police bullet hit Homocov in the neck and he gave up. Bernard Gersper, 21, Columbus, driver, was pursued on foot and caught. His pistol was empty.

Lying in blood and loot in the back of the car were Jaksic and Juratovac. There were more than 50 exploded shells in the automobile. Juratovac was shot in the stomach and the hospital reported his condition "poor."

Columbus police said Gersper has been identified as one of three men who took $826 in two hold-ups there Friday night.

Jaksic had served a reformatory sentence for robbing a safe and Juratovac served a reformatory term for burglary, police reported.

Ex-Mansfield Patrol Member In Fight.

One of the state highway patrolmen engaged in the gun battle with the bandits near Cleveland yesterday was L. D. Alexander, formerly stationed in Mansfield. He was transferred to the Kent sub-station some time ago.

It was recalled by fellow officers here today that Alexander was also engaged in a gun fight at Loudonville about two years ago, capturing a bandit who escaped from the Wooster jail after an exchange of shots. On both occasions he escaped injury.

Arrangements Completed By Shelby Committee at Meeting Saturday.

SHELBY—Preliminary arrangements for observance of Memorial day, May 30, in Shelby were completed Saturday night when committees planning the parade and program met at the Veterans of Foreign Wars lodge hall for a special meeting.

The parade again this year will be headed by the Mansfield Legion bugle and drum corps. It will form at 9:30 a. m. at Wentz avenue to march to Oak-land cemetery where the program will be held.

The procession will march at 10 a. m. from Wentz avenue, west on Main street to Gamble street, to the cemetery.

Others taking part in the parade will be the 65-piece Shelby high school band directed by Music Supervisor W. R. Conger, several hundred school children, patriotic organizations, other lodges and clubs, city and school officials.

A speaker for the program has not been secured, officials planning the observance announced today. Memorial services for the war dead will be held at the cemetery preceding the address.

The annual Memorial church services will be held this year at 9:30 a. m. Sunday, May 26, at First Baptist church. Rev. W. L. Peters, will deliver the sermon.

Arrangements for the observance here are in charge of committees made up of members of the patriotic organizations, American Legion and auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary, Daughters and Sons of Civil War veterans, Daughters of America and Women's Relief corps make up the sponsoring groups.

HOUSE VOTES SUPPORT FOR NEW CABINET

Confidence in Churchill Government Expressed by Commons Today.

it, to declare their confidence in his new government.

"If you ask what is our policy, it is to wage war by sea, land and air with all our might and with all the strength God can give us and wage war against monstrous tyranny never surpassed in the dark, lamentable catalogue of human crime," the prime minister said.

He said that the nation is facing a grievous ordeal.

"We have before us many long months of struggle and suffering," he said. "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat."

"If you ask what is our aim I can answer with one word—victory," he said.

"Our aim is victory at all costs—victory in spite of all terror, victory however long and hard the road may be, for without victory there is no survival."

Hastings Bertrand Lees-Smith announced that labor would support the government and Sir Percy Harris in behalf of the Liberals said that his party would support the government. Harris said that Churchill had the necessary vigor and imagination for his task.

Churchill spoke only for seven minutes and he concluded his speech amidst tremendous cheers.

"I take up my task in buoyancy and hope," he said.

"I feel sure that our cause won't be suffered to fail among men. I feel entitled this time to claim the aid of all and I say 'come, let us go forward together with our united strength.'"

In the house of lords a motion of confidence similar to that presented by Churchill to the commons was moved by Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax.

FLIES WORLD'S FASTEST PLANE!

TEST PILOT HOMER BERRY LIKES ALL THE SPEED HE CAN GET IN A PLANE, BUT HE LIKES HIS SMOKING S-L-O-W! SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS ARE HIS CIGARETTE

"FASTEST PLANE off the production line today!" That's how Homer Berry describes the Bell Airacobra, amazing new speed plane. He should know. This veteran speed test pilot started flying in 1913...started smoking Camels the same year. "No other cigarette ever gave me anything like the pleasure of a Camel," he says. "They burn slower, smoke milder and cooler."

Camels don't irritate my throat and their full, rich flavor doesn't tire my taste. In 26 years, that slower burning has given me a lot of extra smoking. Before you take it for granted you're getting all the pleasure there is in a cigarette, try Camels. Enjoy the advantages of Camel's slower-burning costlier tobaccos. Penny for penny your best cigarette buy!

TEST PILOT HOMER BERRY SAYS:

"No fast burning for me in my cigarette. I've smoked Camels ever since there have been any Camels. They burn slower and give me more pleasure per puff and more puffs per pack. I'd walk a mile for a slow-burning Camel!"

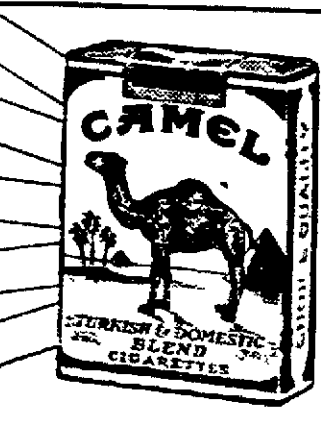

SMOKERS: SAVE THE COST OF THE STATE CIGARETTE TAX

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at right.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get the unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment—of cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

Slower-burning Camels give you—

- EXTRA MILDNESS
- EXTRA COOLNESS
- EXTRA FLAVOR

5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

• In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to

French Claim Victory In First Mechanized Battle

MOTOR TROOPS CLASHED NEAR LIEGE SECTOR

Famed German Units Halted In First Test of Rival Power on Wheels.

By RALPH HEINZEN
(UP Staff Correspondent)

PARIS — French and German mechanized forces have clashed for the first time in the war on the road near Tongres, Belgium, 10 miles north of Liege, and the French won the battle, French military sources reported today.

It was said that the French motorized unit had gone to the aid of Belgians trying to hold the road from Maastricht, Holland, to Tongres in the face of a furious German drive. When the French arrived, the Belgians counter-attacked, French advices said. The famed German motorized units were halted, proving the superiority of France's motor units in the first test of strength, the French spokesmen said.

The Germans were reported using the motorized technique of the Polish campaign. The columns which broke through the Albert canal along the Tongres road were said to have been almost entirely mechanized.

French reports said Allied air forces had bombed and machine-gunned the advancing German columns and had smashed the last of the Maastricht bridge over which the Germans crossed into Belgium. They also were said to have bombed German infantry in the rear of the mechanized columns.

These reports indicated that the Germans were making little progress in the Maastricht sector. Tongres is only 12 miles southwest of Maastricht and the Germans apparently had not reached there yet.

Holding Out.

The French military spokesman said that the Liege fortifications, 10 miles south of the Maastricht-Tongres road, were still holding out except for the Eben Amai fort which the Germans had taken in the first thrust. The Belgians were said to have tangled up German operations around Liege by destroying all bridges.

The 605th French war commune said that the German attacks on Holland and Belgium had redoubled in violence and that fighting was centered north of the Albert canal, southwest of Tirlenmont (23 miles northwest of Liege) and in the Belgian Ardennes district, near Luxembourg.

French reports said violent fighting continued in the southern Ardennes and North DeFuchateau districts of Belgium near Luxembourg.

French dispatches said that French troops had broken an attack by a full German division east of the Moselle sector Sunday and that the French also had stopped two heavy German attacks in the Saar West Vosges and the Warndt-Ohrenthal salients.

It was understood that some bombs had fallen in the Paris region during an air raid last night but no details were given.

Air raid sirens aroused Parisians at dawn again today and kept them in shelters from 6:40 to 7:15 a. m. Their night had been disturbed by alarm—from 12:15 to 1:15 a. m. during which the most violent anti-aircraft firing of the war echoed through the city.

TRAINS COLLIDE

250 Passengers Injured as 2 Excursions Pile Up.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A too swift approach to a station where a preceding section was pulling out was the tentative explanation today by Erie railroad officials for a collision at Port Jervis, N. Y., in which 250 were hurt, 35 seriously enough for hospitalization.

The accident early yesterday involved two of five excursion trains carrying international business machine employees from the company's Endicott, N. Y., factory for a two-day outing at the New York world's fair.

Most of the injured suffered only minor cuts, bruises and shock.

MEN FOILED IN THEFT ATTEMPT

Try To Steal Formula: One Drenched With Acid In Escape.

LOS ANGELES — (AP)—Two German-speaking men today sought to steal a research chemist's formula for a new type high-test gasoline and then escaped after a fight in which one of them was drenched with sulphuric acid, according to Los Angeles police.

The intruders fired one shot at Carl Albin, 35, their intended victim before they fled in an automobile bearing out-of-state license plates.

Detectives expressed belief the two men might be German agents trying to obtain the formula to send to Germany to be used in refining more powerful fuel for Nazi warcraft.

MAY SESSION

Sunday School Workers Council To Meet Tuesday.

The Sunday School Workers' council of the Main Street Evangelical church will hold its May meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kochheiser, 11 Chestnut street.

"Advance in Leadership Education" will be the topic for discussion, with Rev. C. L. Kern, pastor, as chairman. The committee in charge is comprised of Mrs. T. L. Jockett, Mrs. L. Campbell, Mrs. Ver McDonald, Mrs. Dorothy Tingley, Marjorie Homerick and Geraldine Harley.

DUTCH RETREAT AS NAZIS TURN ON NEW POWER

But British and French Troops Counter-Attack Strongly on Holland Fronts.

The South Willem canal about 40 miles from Rotterdam.)

The Dutch high command said that German troops with armored cars had captured Langstraat, city of important Dutch factories, but that the Dutch were slowly regaining control of the situation in Rotterdam, where German parachute and airplane troops had been landed in large numbers.

Langstraat is in a district of North Brabant province, adjacent to the Belgian frontier.

The southern part of Rotterdam still was held by heavily-armed small German units, which are without artillery, and which are "now being attacked successfully by our forces," the Dutch said.

The Dutch statement, broadcast over the Hilversum radio, said that Dutch aviators "bravely attacked" important German positions, but results of the attack were not stated.

Concentrate Power.

The Germans are concentrating their power in the south, it was said, but were meeting the most determined resistance.

There was extraordinary German airplane activity in the Amsterdam area and it was believed the Germans were trying to prevent reserve troops from this part of the country from going south to meet advancing French troops at the Maas (Meuse) river and cut the Germans off from Rotterdam.

(Military sources at Paris reported that a French mechanized column supported by Allied bombing planes and artillery had joined Belgian forces and checked the Germans on the road near Tongres, 10 miles north of Liege, after a stiff battle.)

Admits Retreat.

Before the latest reports from the front, the Dutch high command had admitted that the Germans had forced the Dutch back across the Maas and Yssel rivers at several points.

A decisive battle for Rotterdam, now almost completely held by the Dutch after most severe fighting, appeared imminent. The French in Brabant province were reported to be rushing to the front a large mechanized force for a major offensive, aided by powerful Dutch units specially equipped for fighting in this terrain.

The situation at the Hague was reported normal with the Dutch completely in control. It was assumed that Queen Wilhelmina and Princess Juliana remained at the royal palace there.

Royal Air Force planes were reported to have dislocated German communications by blasting roads and bridges in the Maastricht area of the Dutch-Belgian frontier.

Mopping up of German parachute troops in the Rotterdam area was nearly completed, the Dutch high command asserted. Indicating that the Germans still held Waalhaven, the Rotterdam airport, the high command said that the field had now lost significance to the Germans because of fierce Dutch artillery fire on it.

In the northern province of Holland, where there are no defense lines, the Dutch troops withdrew, hampering the German advance as they retired, the high command said.

grounds that it was military information.

The British legation to the Holy See, as well as authorities at the Vatican, were reported reliably to have advised the English and Scottish students it would be prudent for them to go home.

Italian authorities resumed requisitioning trucks for the second time since the outbreak of the war last September.

There was an unconfirmed report that the sale of foreign newspapers, including the Vatican L'Osservatore Romano, was to be prohibited in Rome.

Fascist newspapers refrained today from raising the possibility of war with the Allies over the vexations of contraband control in the Mediterranean as part of the blockade against Germany. The Italian press warned Britain and France, however, that they were playing a "dangerous game."

In several instances, copies of the Vatican City newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, which contained Pope Pius' expression of support for the rulers of Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, were torn from readers' hands by blackshirted fascists.

The general belief in neutral quarters was that Italy was not yet ready to enter the war but was willing to try to help the armies of her friend, Germany, by trying to disconcert or divert the attention of the British and French.

WIFE DIES

TOLEDO—(UP)—Mrs. George N. Schoonmaker, 48, wife of Toledo's city manager, died Sunday night.

GRACE CHURCH CALLS TOLEDO MAN HERE TO BECOME RECTOR

Rev. Glenn Fuller Lewis, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Toledo, has accepted a call to serve as rector of the Grace Episcopal church here.

Announcement of Rev. Lewis' acceptance was made before the congregation during the morning services yesterday by Dean Bryer of Bexley Hall, Kenyon college, who served as guest pastor Sunday.

Rev. Lewis succeeds Rev. Milton G. Nicola who resigned his pastorate here March 1 to become rector of Grace Episcopal church in Ravenna. Rev. Lewis will assume his duties here Sept. 2, according to the announcement.

He has been rector of the Toledo church since 1936, has been active in young peoples work in the diocese and is assistant secretary of the Diocesan Convention.

Born in Cleveland, Feb. 28, 1911, he was educated in the Cleveland public schools and received his B. A. degree from Oberlin college in 1933 and was graduated from Bexley Hall, the Kenyon college divinity school, with a B. D. degree in 1936.

Rev. Lewis was ordained June 14, 1936, to the diaconate in the chapel of the Holy Spirit, Gambier, and to the priesthood in Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, Dec. 21, 1936 by the late Bishop Warren Lincoln Rogers.

In Toledo Rev. Lewis is a member of the executive boards of the East Side Y. M. C. A., East Toledo club and the Toledo Council of Churches, and is a member of the Department of Christian Education and chairman of the commission of Gambier summer school.

Although he does not assume his duties here until Sept. 2, Rev. and Mrs. Lewis will be in Mansfield next Sunday. He will conduct the 11 a. m. church service.

APRIL TERM OF JURY TACKLES LIST OF CASES

Finishes Consideration of One Action Quickly, Starts Work on Second.

Convening for the first time this morning, the April term petit jury disposed of one case in short order and started on the second before noon.

In its initial case the jury upheld the will of the late Mike Sterro of Mansfield following a short hearing. The will had been contested by John Sterro and others in an action against Lucy Siciliano and others.

Attys. J. W. Galbraith and C. F. Creedman represented the plaintiffs and Atty. John C. O'Donnell, the defendants.

The jury was scheduled to hear another case today, involving the will of the late Mary V. Phelps. A suit filed by Mattie L. Castor and others seeks to set aside the will.

The action was brought against Paul Walker and Glenn Maglott, executors of the estate. Attys. Mansfield and Black are counsel for the plaintiffs and Vance C. Stuller of Bellville for the defendants.

Six other suits, most of them for damage judgments, are on the jury's calendar for the week.

Members of the jury for today's cases were:

Stella Galbraith, Troy township; Ollie E. Evans, 145 West Fifth street; Samuel S. Anderson, 809 Maple street; Mrs. Mabel G. Torrence, 105 Vennum avenue; Mrs. Edna Berlo, 40 Cedar street; LeRoy Houman, Butler township; Bernice Stover, 166 Vennum avenue; F. C. Harding, Bloominggrove township; Clara M. Peal, 239 Cline avenue; E. L. Smith, 737 Bowman street; Walter Wiles, Washington township; and Raymond C. Wolford, Bloominggrove township.

MANSFIELD'S OUTSTANDING CLEANER

Mansfield News-Journal AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

The Hatch bill is being vigorously opposed by all the political bad eggs.

A sadly solemn thought is that there'll probably never be as many public offices as there are candidates for them.

School children get the idea, more readily than their parents, that being fingerprinted for identification doesn't make them criminals.

Recognition for First Voters WHILE no definite plans have been made locally to observe next Sunday as "New Citizens' day," as is being done in some cities, it appears that present working conditions are such that emphasis may well be placed on what President Roosevelt has designated as "I-Am-An-American day," for which he urges observance as a "public occasion in recognition of our citizens who have attained their majority or who have become naturalized within the last year."

It sometimes seems that the privileges and responsibilities of American citizenship are too lightly regarded by many who attain it through the good fortune of having been born in the United States, and for whom no formality is associated with reaching the voting age of 21.

It has been the custom, for a number of years, to conduct impressive ceremonies when foreign-born residents of the community become naturalized citizens, but no such attention has been accorded native-born young men and women when they "reach their majority," as it is termed.

With so much effort made to impress young people with the importance of other experiences, it appears strange that more emphasis hasn't been placed on this particular change of status, with greater stressing of what it means to be permitted to vote and to enjoy liberties and opportunities that are accorded them in larger measure in the United States than in any other country in the world.

The fact that some present-day citizens have reached middle age without realizing the importance of voting at primaries and general elections evidences the need for further education along this line—and that education should start even before voting age is reached.

All first voters, as well as those who have previously enjoyed this privilege, are urged to go to the polls tomorrow for the primaries, at which state, district and county candidates will be nominated.

This is one of the duties of citizenship which cannot safely be neglected.

'Date' Clearing House Is Good Idea

THOSE who have had the experience of deciding on a date for an entertainment, annual meeting, convention, or any group assembly of considerable size, will appreciate the value of steps now being taken to provide a clearing house for "dates," so as to guard against conflict of meetings which, in many instances, involve attendance by the same people.

Such unhappy incidents have occurred in Mansfield a number of times in the past, when it could be discovered, for instance, that a community play, concert, or some other entertainment of city-wide interest had been set for a date on which some other large meeting had been scheduled—each group having acted without knowledge of the other.

It has now been proposed by the Mansfield chapter of S'mposiarchs, an organization of college fraternity men, that the Chamber of Commerce set up a clearing house through which a record of dates chosen for future events can be consulted by other organizations and committees.

While conflict in dates is particularly disturbing in connection with large meetings, there would also be an advantage in having such a calendar available when the time is being set for church, fraternal and club affairs, to make sure that attendance would not be cut down by another engagement for the same evening.

In its capacity of providing community service along a variety of lines, it appears that the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce is the logical organization to develop this clearing house plan of making it possible to keep tab on coming events that are usually scheduled well in advance.

Defense Against Nazi Ideas

WHILE it continues as the earnest intent of the United States to maintain a position of national neutrality in connection with Europe's war, it is important to be clear about the main issue, for this country's defense, first of all, must be against Nazi ideas.

The Nazi enterprise is obviously a marauding expedition, a tremendous effort to grab the land and wealth and manpower of other nations. It is much more than political conquest of the Napoleonic sort. It is an outbreak of jungle morality such as the world has not seen before in modern times.

As regards the traditional decencies of civilized life in international relations, the Hitler doctrine and practice are as alien as if the Nazi invaders were men from Mars.

In the moral theory and practice of the Nazis, truth and decency are turned upside down and inside out.

We of this new world fight not with arms, but with the weapons of the mind and spirit, to uphold the old decencies and moralities and the old faith in something above all this bloody welter. We fight to preserve in our own hearts, and to exemplify in our own public and private life, the civilization we have known, and to use our weight of opinion and example for this purpose.

Artistic Disorder Defended

THERE may be danger of this modern world growing too regular, too straight and square and round and symmetrical. This is seen in ultra-modern architecture, with buildings and parts of buildings, and many other things, made in geometrical patterns. It's very even and neat and orderly, and may satisfy tidy souls, but most people probably tend to get tired of it.

Anyway, it's refreshing to find also a corrective tendency in the opposite direction, toward what might be called artistic disorder. Men's hats seem to be a notable example.

With a kind of instinct for salvation, men have insisted on wearing their hats a little crooked, especially the "smart" and sporty styles, until finally some manufacturers have come to making them a little crooked to start with. Women have already gone far in this direction.

It's really the revival of an old artistic principle. An art critic says that "nearly everything in Spain is made a little crooked or uneven." It seems queer, until you get tired of the mechanical perfection of an industrial age. It isn't really human to have everything perfectly straight or square or round.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The visitor to Washington frequently returns home nowadays feeling that the senate was a disappointing feature of his sight-seeing tour.

He saw the senate in session. It was something of a letdown, particularly after such impressive spectacles as the black-robed justices of the Supreme court in their marble temple, and the Lincoln memorial with its life-like statue.

Not that Visitor Jones thinks the senators failed to comport themselves as members of "the greatest deliberative body in the world." It's just that they don't look so great.

To Jones they look just about the same as the fellows in the Rotary club. And Jones recalls reading in his boyhood of "the frock-coated gladiators of the national political arena."

In those days—the early 1900's—most of the senators wore Prince Alberts and beards. Newspaper correspondents wore silk hats and frock coats to the opening session.

Them Were the Days.

LONG before the late James "Ham" Lewis was recognized as the senate's undisputed Sultan of Sartoria, there were Beau Brummels like Montana's William A. Clark, "copper king" and ex-Indiana fighter, immaculate in one-button cutaway and striped trousers, and Mississippi's James K. Vardaman, magnificent in a white flannel suit and white hat contrasting with his coal black hair.

There was Jeff Davis of Arkansas, known as the sartorial Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of the senate. In Washington he wore the conventional frock coat, but by the time he reached his hills he had on scuffed boots, a frayed straw hat and patched pants.

Massachusetts' blue-blooded Henry Cabot Lodge, with a perfectly-trimmed Van Dyke and frock coat, and South Carolina's "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman, in a long black alpaca coat majestically swinging a palm-leaf fan, used to be sights.

In the late twenties, Senator Lee Overman of North Carolina wore a black crepe with velvet collar and red satin lining. And big Tom Heflin of Alabama embellished Capital Hill with a voluminous black coat, cream-colored vest, grey trousers and a broad-brimmed black hat.

The arrival of summer in Washington then was heralded by Heflin's cream-colored pongee suit. Even Louisiana Huey Long came to the capital with a new morning coat.

Only a Few Left.

THE senate now boasts a score or more of snappy dressers—but only along conventional, business lines. Tom Connally of Texas occasionally dons a frock coat, and Matthew Neely of West Virginia gives color to the senate scene with suits of plaid and green but there is nothing today to compare with the style of the pink-and-white whiskered "Ham" Lewis of Illinois.

Shirts in delicate shades of blue, green and brown suits of rich tones, texture and tailoring, of soft suits, de luxe waistcoats and gleaming spats and shoes all blended harmoniously. Add to these the whiskers, the wavy hair, the pince-nez and the grand manner.

Senator Lewis had a dark brown suit with a faun-colored double breasted vest that senate pages still talk about in adulation.

Gone too is Borah of Idaho, probably the last of the old Romans. Borah wasn't a fancy dresser but with his leonine head and great mane of hair he was the perfect picture of the old-time gladiator.

NEW DANGER AT THE DIKE

Listen, World! "Get Away From Ease!"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ELEANOR ROOSEVELT, on the premiere of her new radio program, said something that must have startled many a woman listener. Telling of the various reasons for her constant traveling, she gave, as one of her strongest motives, the need "to get away from the ease of the White House."

Life in our No. 1 Home, she explained, was too smoothly efficient—too effortless for any Top Lady occupant who wanted to preserve her wallop and self-respect. Wherever one turned there were smiling faces, willing hands, amiable tongues. All bent on pleasing. But such pleasantness, said she, was dangerous for Americans who must take their place in the rough and tumble of everyday life. If one would stay fit and lean, they had best stick to the common trail—face the common challenges and adjustments.

I wonder how many feminine listeners agreed with that statement, off hand. My guess is—not many! We're fairly well sold on the idea of Comfort, we American women. We like to provide it for our men folk and youngsters—and we're not at all adverse to draping a nice, thick padding of it around ourselves whenever we can. Push buttons are our pet gadgets—Labor Saving Devices our religion. Thumbs down on Ease? The notion must have sounded completely screwball to many of the sisterhood. And yet—

Mrs. Roosevelt was right. Far be it from me to advise everyone to go out and split their own breakfast kindling, or to break the ice in the wash bowl for the morning dip-and-scoot. I've done both and I've no illusions about certain aspects of Ye Simple Life.

Yet I also know that Ease is rapidly becoming America's Public Enemy No. 1. Ease can demoralize you more quickly and thoroughly than any amount of hardship. Moreover, it's infinitely harder to fight.

You always know where you are with Hardship and have time to figure out your clinches. But Ease sneaks up on you—and you're a bum before you realize it.

Nor do you need to live in the White House to have this happen to you. You can take the count just as surely in the shabbiest shack. For Ease doesn't depend on overfurnished seats.

It lurks in any situation which lacks personal challenge... any situation which allows you to shuffle along in the same old mental rut.

Poverty's hard to stand—sickness still harder—heartbreak hardest of all. But none of them can steal the spark from your eye nor the spring from your step as swiftly as mental stagnation, which comes from sluggish living.

And the most perilous part of it is—such an existence may seem perfectly innocent, even admirable. A little circle of flattering friends can reduce your I. Q. to the "fishing point in nothing flat."

Doting parents and overly devoted mates who do your thinking for you, or bear your responsibilities, will also give you a swift shove into the ranks of the Feeble Minded.

IF YOU WANT TO STAY EAGERLY AND VIGOROUSLY ALIVE THESE DAYS YOU MUST GET OUT WHERE THE TRAFFIC'S TOUGH. YOU MUST CLIMB DOWN FROM YOUR HIGH CHAIR, THROW AWAY YOUR BIB AND EXPOSE YOURSELF TO CHANGES AND CHALLENGES. CRITICISMS AND COMPETITION—TACKLE LIFE AS IT ACTUALLY IS. SAYS ANY PRETTY ILLUSIONS AND POLTY PREJUDICES, OR GO DEAD FROM THE NECK UP—AND REALLY!

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—In addition to the San Francisco fair the President has two "mysts" on the sightseeing schedule of his transcontinental trip next month. They are King Canyon in California and Yosemite National Park.

He revealed this to the delegation of California congressmen who protested the use of government-owned ships to transport cement and lumber to the Panama Canal Zone from Atlantic ports. The Californians said this put Pacific Coast dealers at an unfair disadvantage. Roosevelt promised to look into the matter and then the group asked him about his travelling plans for this summer.

He countered by inquiring when congress would adjourn saying his trip depended upon that.

"We're willing to call it a day whenever you give the word," said Representative Ed Izac of San Diego, echoed by Representatives Dick Welch and Frank Havenner of San Francisco. Roosevelt replied with a grin that he hoped the windup would be around June 10 or 12.

Although he refused to be drawn out on any "political plans" for the trip, he did reveal that he expected to take a southern route on the way west and return via the north, after visiting his daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, in Seattle.

"I'm very anxious to spend some time in the national parks," he said, "particularly King Canyon and Yosemite. These beauty spots have always intrigued me, and I haven't had a leisurely trip for several years."

War Notes.

GENERAL WEYGAND already has moved about 70,000 men (Australians and Algerians) from French Syria through Istanbul to Turkish Thrace. This is within striking distance of Salonika and should enable him to get there first in case Mussolini decides to land at this key military port.

One reason the Allies are so tenacious about Narvik is its railroad to Sweden, which could be used to send troops to that country if she were invaded. . . . For some time British warships have been concentrated off the Dutch coast, ready to give aid at any minute. . . . General Weygand has 8,000 motor trucks attached to his army in Syria—mute evidence that he figures he will have to do some fast travelling.

Hitler and Hungary.

OPINION toward Hitler inside Hungary is mixed—some opposed, some favoring a Nazi alliance which would help reconquer Transylvania from Rumania.

But the one Hungarian who hates Hitler most, and in turn is hated most by Hitler, is the regent, Admiral Horthy.

Two years ago, Hitler invited Horthy to visit him to discuss the idea of a Hungarian-German military alliance. Horthy, however, was cool. He pointed out that should Germany lose the next war she would not lose very much of her own territory, but that Hungary would lose much more.

Very small territory would be carved up into nothing.

Naturally, Hitler, accustomed to the fawning of other small European rulers, was irked, almost insulted. But the final insult came when Admiral Horthy was his guest at the German naval review at Kiel.

Hitler had launched some new ships, was building up a new navy, was proud of it. But when the Hungarian regent, who was an admiral in the old Austro-Hungarian navy, was asked what he thought of the German naval display, he replied:

"Pretty good for a beginner." (Copyright, 1940)

Kudzu Grass

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I AM interested in a new kind of grass "kudzu" which was brought to this country from northern Russia. It is a native of steep slopes and impoverished eroded land, is used to long cold winters and hot dry summers.

The roots are vigorous and penetrate the solid earth 10 to 12 feet, thus insuring greenness even in dry weather, for it stands knee-deep in the subsoil that retains more moisture than the surface.

Kudzu is a legume—that is it belongs to the vast and important clover family. Nodules on the roots are full of bacteria that bring nitrogen from the air into the soil. Nitrogen is the most costly element needed for growth of all plants.

Kudzu is perennial. It is not bothered by disease or insect pests. It makes barren soils into a permanent pasture, which grows better bone and muscle for meat animals than grass with a smaller nitrogen content. It makes excellent hay and a shower of rain before the crop is entirely cured will not materially impair the forage, as it does with clover or alfalfa. If moistened after being stored in the mow, it regains much of its former greenness and makes excellent poultry feed in winter.

It propagates by seeds that are planted in with another cultivated crop, such as corn or beans, the first year. If kept clean, the plants will spread, rooting at the joints, until they make a thick carpet the second year, and keep down everything else. In spite of the rooting tendency, it is not hard to eradicate, if desired, for all that is needed is to disk up the crowns and expose to the sun.

A pasture may be planted, as one plants a strawberry bed. I shall try only a few plants this year, but if what the seedsmen says is so—and he has been in business 28 years—I have a vision of our rocky, hilly slope covered with a soil-enriching crop of kudzu before many summers.

Some years ago soybeans were practically unknown to the general class of farmers. The chief use for these beans at that time was to place a few in the reels of flour sifters at the mills, to keep the flour from sticking too tightly to the silk. Now soybeans stand third in importance among farm crops. When kudzu becomes well known—just remember I told you.

AIR THURSDAY

Flight Training Under New U. S. Program Begins This Week for 10 at Airport.

Thursday will be a red letter day in the lives of 10 young Mansfielders. On that day nine men and one girl selected from a group of 39 who recently participated in an aviation ground school course will begin flight training at the municipal airport.

Under the Civil Aeronautics authority civilian pilot training program they will receive a minimum of 35 hours instruction—enough to qualify for a private pilot's license.

Instruction will be given by James R. "Bud" Harrington, municipal airport manager and government instructor here. Set up in three stages, it will require almost continuous daylight flying of the airport's training ship during the next three months.

For the first month the students will spend three hours a week in the air besides practicing taxiing, take-offs and landings. The second stage, of three weeks, will entail four hours of flying a week, and the final three to five weeks will be five hours a week flying.

Thursday will also be a big day for three other local pilots. Paul Gimbel, chief mechanic at the airport, is scheduled to take his commercial pilot's rating while Charles Silsby and William Kick, who now hold solo pilot's licenses, will take examinations for private licenses.

Tow CAA inspectors, C. R. Bullock and S. Rising, of Cleveland, will be here to launch the student flying program and give the pilot exams, which incidentally consist of written tests as well as flight tests.

Steel work has been completed on the new hangar which is being erected on the airfield. Construction of the siding on the building will start soon. Expected to be finished this month, it will furnish accommodations for at least 13 planes.

The Mansfield Archery club has set up its range on the airport property and plans to hold several meets there this summer. Located at the southwest corner of the field they have already erected targets, and armed with giant bows and arrows yesterday held a practice session.

Accident reports recently received from the CAA prove it's the boys who don't obey the rules of the air safety board who get into trouble most often—in other words it's "pilot fault" in almost every disaster.

Of a total of 146 aircraft accidents in March, violations of regulations laid down by the CAA were the direct cause of most of them. Ten of these accidents involved fatalities and four other injuries. There were nine in which no injuries were reported.

Six of the accidents resulted from spins or stalls. These were attributed to loss of flying speed in a flat gliding approach to a landing, a flat turn made during an emergency landing, or a stall after completing a 180-degree turn. There were three accidents in which recklessness or acrobatic maneuvers at low altitude were given as the contributing factors.

Low acrobatics were involved in one fatal accident in which a pilot was trying to "show off" over his own home. Two fatal accidents were caused by persons walking into revolving propellers.

A fatal collision was attributed to failure of two pilots to see each other during a landing approach. Overloaded planes caused two accidents and improper maintenance and care of a plane were found to be cause of a wing failure in another accident.

RESINOL

BETTER

Than We Ever Thought!

The Sunday edition of The News-Journal is just a little more than six months old.

That means we've printed a few more than 26 issues of it, if our arithmetic is right.

Actually, that's not very many papers.

But it has been enough to show a number of important things.

Perhaps the most important is this:

The Sunday News-Journal has ARRIVED.

Frankly, when we started it last October, we thought we had a good idea for a Sunday paper.

But we didn't know how long it was going to take readers of the daily News-Journal in Mansfield and the vicinity to think so for themselves.

Now we've got the answer.

The answer is 26 Sundays.

We're sure of the answer because there hasn't been a single Sunday since the venture began that circulation hasn't gained.

There hasn't been a single week go by that we haven't had a lot of laudatory comments on the Sunday edition.

People have liked the features, the pictures, the local news that bridged the gap between Saturday and Monday, the late telegraph news that kept them abreast of world developments at a critical time in the world's history---as a matter of fact, they've liked everything about the Sunday paper.

Advertisers who have used it regularly have gotten results--- good results.

People have not only said they liked the Sunday News-Journal but they've demonstrated it---because more and more of them buy it every Sunday.

Lots of them ask the same question.

They say:

"How can you put out such an interesting, readable paper, with colored comics and all those features for only 3 cents?"

Well, we're doing it---and we're happy about it.

So, at the end of the first half year of its existence, we feel the Sunday News-Journal has, as we said before, ARRIVED.

It's a fixture---a part of the town.

It's going to keep on growing---and it's going to keep on getting better.

And here's just a suggestion to those few people in and near Mansfield who don't subscribe to the Sunday News-Journal:

How Can You Afford NOT To Take It

At Only 3 Cents?

Miss Margaret Alice Wigton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Wigton, West Dickson avenue, will be graduated from St. Vincent's school of nursing at St. Vincent's hospital in Toledo this Saturday. Miss Wigton, who was graduated from St. Peter's high school in 1936, attended the Immaculate Heart college in Hollywood, Cal. for a year before going to St. Vincent's.

Susie Janis Home Scene of Two Special Social Events

MEMBERS of Beta Sigma Phi sorority entertained their mothers with a brunch at the Susie Janis home yesterday at 12:30 o'clock. The meal was served to 24 guests at a T-shaped table, which was decorated with two bronze carts filled with jonquils and ferns. Seated atop each of these carts was a miniature May queen, from whose hands satin streamers led to pink glass swans. Corsages of pastel sweetpeas and yellow roses were presented to the mothers in honor of the day. Miss Dorothy Bacon, assisted by Miss Dorothy Bacon, arranged the affair.

Preceding the Beta Sigma Phi brunch at the Susie Janis home, Delta Sigma Zeta had a breakfast at 9:30 a. m. for their mothers. Maxine Bush served as toast mistress for the party, and Mrs. Alan Bond gave a toast to the daughters. A quartet composed of Maxine Williams, Jenny Lou Ganaway, Milena Miller and Patty Olin, sang a song. Breakfast was served at two long tables decorated with floral centerpieces. Arrangements were made by Patty Oberlander, Ethel Mae Bogan and Marjorie Scott.

The next meeting will be held with Dorothy Bergman, Rowland avenue, Wednesday night. Barbara Challa will be the associate hostess.

Greek Letter Group Entertains With Tea

The Colonial Guest House was the scene of the tea held between the hours of 2:30 and 4:30 p. m. yesterday by members of Omega Tau Gamma in honor of their mothers. Favors were small corsages for the guests. Mrs. Paul Woodhill presided at the table which was centered with a three tier plate of tiny cakes. Arrangements for the social were in charge of Mrs. Norval Bower, Mrs. Harvey Kibler and Mrs. Vaughn Beatty. The group will meet again June 14 in the club rooms with Mrs. Beatty as hostess.

HAVE SESSION.
Pilgrim Progress Girls club met with Eileen Schneider, Wayne street, Saturday. Games were played and refreshments served. The June meeting will be held with Mary Dillon, R. D. 5.

Name Mansfield Women to Posts At District Meet

Three Take Offices In Daughters of Liberty At Galion Conclave.

SEVERAL Mansfield women were elected to offices Saturday at the annual district meeting of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty which was held at the Galion armory. Gertrude Wells of that city was elected district counselor. The three Mansfield women to receive offices are Mary Johnson, vice counselor; Luella White, guide, and Ethel Wells Cronenwett, secretary.

The other officers are Ada Newman, Galion, treasurer; Glades Edgar, Mt. Vernon, associate counselor; Lucy Decker and Mabel Moser, Galion, guards. The district includes councils from Mansfield, Galion and Mt. Vernon, and all three had representatives at the session. Lucy Decker and Hazel Byrns, Galion, were in charge of the 6:30 p. m. dinner served by the host council. Bertha Church, district counselor of Mt. Vernon, presided during the business meeting, and Mabel Moser, Galion counselor, gave the address of welcome. State Councilor Elsie Haas, Dayton, who was presented with a gift by Beatrice Coover, Galion, past state councilor, made a short talk. Plans were made to hold the next district meeting in Galion, and picnics in Mansfield. Besides the above mentioned state officers present, there were the following guests: Minnie Custer, state treasurer; Cora Booher, vice counselor; Jessie Lacy, past state councilor, and Warren Lacy, all of Dayton; Elizabeth Parker, past state councilor; Minnie Kinsey, past associate councilor, all of Cleveland; Oscar Kehl, past state councilor, and Helen Kehl, state guard, and Loretta Mains, past state councilor, all of Canton; Bertha Church, past state councilor and past district councilor, and Glades Edgar, state guide, all of Mt. Vernon.

Quiet Ceremony Read Sunday Noon

The wedding of Mrs. Blanche Russell and Walter Bleiz was solemnized at 12 o'clock yesterday noon before the altar of the First Lutheran church. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer read the single ring ceremony before members of the immediate families. The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Westfall, R. D. 1, Holmesville, was attired in a navy blue and white ensemble with matching accessories for the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bleiz, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, were the attendants. Mrs. Bleiz wore a rose crepe dress with navy blue accessories. A dinner party for members of the immediate families was held after the ceremony at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Agnes Bleiz, R. D. 6, Mr. and Mrs. Bleiz are now at home to friends at 20 Columbia avenue. Mr. Bleiz is an interior decorator.

CLUB MEETS.

Members of the Sundial Junior Garden club were the guests of Bea Walters, West Third street, recently. Mrs. L. A. Ott talked on "Bees and Their Relation to Flowers." Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be a wild flower hike, but no date was set.

Informally Speaking...

May 13, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

THIS past week-end was a busy one in our town, with all kinds of parties honoring mothers yesterday—most all of the social sororities entertained for their members' mothers with breakfasts, brunches and teas. . . . And since it was such a beautiful day, Lucy, it's too bad you couldn't have driven over to join with us in some of the festivities.

Marianne

This is the second year these Mansfielders have vacationed at the Virginia resort before the opening of the regular season—as they and a few friends who gather there with them prefer the quiet of the pre-season days.

Other vacationists in that part of the south now are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reeder and Orville Oyster who motored to Widen, W. Va. this past week-end to spend the ensuing week visiting with Mrs. Reeder's brother, Dewey Triplett, and his family.

YOU'LL be interested to learn that Richard L. Smith, who's a senior at Hama Divinity school of Wittenberg college, is pastor-elect of the Messiah Lutheran church of Constantine, Mich. . . . Smith (whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith) will become a resident there following commencement exercises in Springfield, May 19, and ordination services in Youngstown on May 22. . . . By the way, Lucy, the Messiah church was also the first church of that eminent Lutheran leader, Dr. Rees Edgar Tulloss, now completing his 30th year as president of Wittenberg, and formerly pastor of the First Lutheran church here.

It looks pretty much as though this is the week for you to come over for a visit, Lucy, because if you do, you'll be sure to see some former Mansfield friends of yours whom you haven't seen for a long time. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beidel and their baby daughter, Sandra, have come up from Wichita Falls, Tex. to visit with Bob's grandmother, Mrs. Henry Wappner. . . . Another former resident, who's here for a vacation, is Mrs. A. J. Stutz—she's here from Huntington, W. Va. with her six-months-old daughter, Juliann. . . . Perhaps you remember Mrs. Stutz better as Mary Alice Kyle. . . . She is staying here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kyle, and her husband will join them before their return home. . . . Edna Jane Olin is arriving today to spend the summer with friends and relatives in this vicinity. . . . A former resident of Belleville and Warren, Miss Olin has been wintering in St. Petersburg, Fla., and while here she will visit at the home of her niece, Mrs. Frank Gadfield.

BILLY KLINGER is busy these days preparing for a violin recital, which he will present at 8 o'clock Friday evening at St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church. . . . All of which leads to an interesting story about Billy's family, the John Klingers. . . . They're all musical, you know, and when Billy (who's in the sixth grade now) began taking violin lessons from Daisie M. Gibson, his mother also took lessons in order to help him. . . . Mrs. Klinger is an accomplished pianist and a member of the Congregational church choir, while Mr. Klinger is the choir director and vocalist at St. John's church—oh yes, and he plays the trumpet in the American Legion drum corps. . . . Then to complete this family of musicians, Billy's sister, Ann Jeannette, is the pianist in the Hayden trio with Joe and Frank Pival, and she plays piano duets with Betty Axtell. . . . All of which seems to sum up to the fact that Billy is following in the proper footsteps.

Saturday was an important day for Anita Louise King, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur M. King, as she did an acrobatic and toe dance at the junior and senior banquet at the Castalia high school. . . . Incidentally, her aunts, Layohn and Betty King, who are students at the school, were mighty proud of her performance.

AND now it's your turn, Lucy, so be sure to write if you can't arrange to come over real soon.

Lovingly,

Marianne

EARLY BREAKFASTS HELD BY 2 GROUPS

Alpha Pi Sigma, Two Chapters of Delta Theta Tau Entertain Mothers At Mansfield-Leland Hotel.

SUNDAY was one of the busiest days in recent weeks with nearly all of the sororities in town, and many other organizations honoring mothers at special parties. Variety was injected into the program of Alpha Pi Sigma sorority when the members entertained their mothers at 8 a. m. in the ballroom.

Miss Isabel Gerstmeier, president, gave the toast to mothers, and two contests provided the entertainment. A hat making contest, and a numerical contest. Favors were presented to each guest by the committee, which included Mrs. Charles Tichnor, Mrs. John Sprosty, Mrs. Alyce Vahar, and Mrs. Charles Wilkin. Miss Marie Kalbfleisch sang "Ave Marie."

The tables were decorated with black and gold candles exemplifying the sorority colors, and daisies representing the club flower. The next regular meeting of the sorority will be held May 21 at the hotel.

There were 70 members of both chapters, mothers and pledges present at the breakfast of Delta Theta Tau which was held in the dining room of the hotel yesterday at 8 a. m.

Miss Doris Mann served as toastmistress, and group singing was conducted by Miss Marjorie Dize. Following the welcome to the mothers by Miss Mann of the Delta Theta chapter, Mrs. Robert Oberlin of the Zeta Rho chapter welcomed the pledges. Three numbers, "Songs My Mother Taught Me," "Birth," and "Aronel of Spring," were sung by Miss Sarah Catherine Wallace.

Miss Thelma Reed played three of her own compositions entitled "Three Modern Impressions," and "Barcarole" by Griffes. Arrangements for the affair were in charge of Mrs. William Jeffries, Mrs. Ernest Geiger, Mrs. Jay Long, Mrs. Gerry Locke, Miss Bette Anderson, Miss Maxine Coffman, Miss Dize, Mrs. John Douglas, Mrs. Robert E. Rogers, Mrs. Ward Ingraham, Miss Mann and Miss Maxine Jones.

MEET TOMORROW.
Members of the Bowman school P.T.A. will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at the school for the election of officers. Dr. R. C. Reeder and Dr. Clarence Hien will be the guest speakers, while S. K. Jorgensen will direct the orchestra, and Miss Eureka Bumpus, music instructor, will sing.

City at Conclave

Mrs. Merritt Giles, Mrs. L. C. Nigh, Mrs. R. M. Calene and Mrs. R. D. Campbell have just returned from Battle Creek, Mich., where they attended the five state biennial conference of the American Association of University Women. They represented the Mansfield branch.

The theme of the convention stressed the importance of women in a movement for peace. The first awarding of the Mary K. Wooley scholarship to a Russian-Jewish refugee, Dr. Ina Arlan, was announced. Dr. Wooley was one of the principal speakers along with Henry C. Wolfe, Dr. James K. Pollock, Dr. Richard Fuller and Dr. Edward Litchfield. The last three men conducted a round table on propaganda. State business meetings were held by the Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin delegations, and members attended the various workshop programs held Friday and Saturday.

Rainbow Board
Conducts Meet

Members of Ruth chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and other Masonic organizations held a pep meeting in the Masonic temple Saturday afternoon for girls, between the ages of 13 and 18, who are interested in becoming members of the Rainbow assembly. Walter F. Greve of Cleveland, state organizer, addressed the group.

Claude M. Hunter, chairman of the advisory board, then appointed the following committee chairman: Mrs. Gertrude English, membership; Mrs. Pearl Bissman, publicity; and Mrs. Frances Turner, equipment. Petitions for membership may be obtained from Mrs. English and Miss Pearl Wiernman, worthy matron of Ruth chapter. Another pep session will be held June 12 at 2 o'clock at the temple. All daughters of persons belonging to Masonic bodies, or those who have friends or relatives in such organizations are especially invited by the board to attend this meeting. An advisory board meeting will be held next Saturday at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Birmelin Feted
By Children At Party

Mrs. Barbara Birmelin was honored by members of her family yesterday with a party in the pavilion of North Lake park. The occasion was her 73rd birthday. Included among the 42 guests were 19 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren of the honoree.

Dinner was served at 6 o'clock, and Mrs. Birmelin received flowers and gifts from the guests. Mrs. Anna Miller, sister of the honoree, was also in attendance. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Birmelin's children, Mrs. Elizabeth Schuttera, Mrs. Anna Eichler, Mrs. Fred Birmelin, George Birmelin, Charles Birmelin, Conrad Birmelin and William Birmelin. Carl Flockert also assisted.

PLAN BANQUET.

The Florence Welty Missionary society of the First Lutheran church is sponsoring a banquet for mothers and daughters of the church at 6:30 o'clock this evening in the assembly rooms. Mrs. Martin Wappner will be the speaker.

HAVE MEETING.

Members of the Lamplighters council met at the Y. W. C. A. Saturday afternoon. Charles Ward was in charge of a Mothers' day program at that time.

Marriage Meddlers

At my question concerning Edith, Katharine took me by the shoulders and held me off from her, looking at me quizzically. Then she dropped her hands and grinned widely at me.

"Yes," she said, "you really mean it! You're actually concerned about the welfare of what Katie would accurately describe as 'dot piece of soup meat in dere.' And after all she's done to you! Well! You're distinctly 'a better man than I am, Gunga Din.' She could stew in her own juice forever and a day, if I were you."

"You know you don't mean that," I said with calm conviction. "But you haven't answered my question."

"She's getting better, worse luck," she returned. At any rate she refuses all help from me, courteously and decidedly."

"Miss Whitlock?" I queried. "That's the solution, I fancy. At any rate, I'm going to get her now. By your leave, I'll tell her to say you asked her to look in on Edie. I'm sure Miss Whitlock can be trusted to deal with the lady."

"Please tell Miss Whitlock to give her every possible attention," I urged.

I hurried on to the door behind which I knew the Princess Olina awaited her summons to the rehearsal.

She opened the door at my knock, and I saw by her eyes that she was far more excited than Mary appeared to be.

"They're all here, aren't they?" she asked feverishly. "I saw them come in from the window."

"Olina!" her mother said reprovingly from the big chair in which she always managed to look every inch a queen. "You have not greeted Mrs. Graham properly. Please repair your omission, and I beg you to restrain your impetuosity. You are acting as if you were a spoiled child, delayed in receiving a promised toy."

Olina's cheeks flushed and her eyes were humiliated and angry, but she dutifully said sweetly, "I do beg your pardon, Mrs. Graham. Won't you sit down?"

"Good morning, Olga," I said meticulously, for the moment ignoring her daughter. Then, as if I had not heard the reproach, I turned back to the princess, who though she did not dare to be sulky, was having a hard time restraining her emotions.

"Thank you, Olina, but I haven't time to sit down," I said. "I am late now in coming for you. I was detained on the way, but I will explain that to Mr. Veritzen, so he will know the delay was not your fault. Are you ready to come down now?"

"Yes, thank you." Then she hesitated and looked at her mother. "Come here, my child," the queen said, and when Olina went over to her, Olga gathered her daughter into her arms and kissed her in the fashion of loving mothers the world over.

"God bless you, my darling!" she said fervently. "May you be successful!"

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, May 14.

ADVERSE planetary influences dominating this day forecast sudden upheavals, commotion, stress and cross purposes generally, all precipitated without warning and with unpredictable denouement. Strange and critical situations seem to "pop up from" nowhere, and in their immediate adjustment there is little to be expected in the way of help from elders, superiors, employers or others who might be in a position to assist. Perhaps much finesse, tact or subtle influence might be brought to bear on such resistance.

Those whose birthday it is would find it well to be on guard for a year of disruption, disintegration, sudden reversals or an avalanche of sudden and unpredictable visitations, which may be breath-taking as well as dramatic. Those from whom wise counsel or solid assistance might be expected may not co-operate unless approached in a delicate, diplomatic or subtle manner, in which their emotions are sympathetically touched.

A child born on this day may have certain cleverness, peculiar sagacity or intuitions, but generally it may be restless, erratic, irresponsible and not prone to the "straight and narrow path," unless given rigorous training in youth.

PROPER POSTURE FOR FOUNDATION EVERGREENS

After a severe winter evergreens should be inspected to ascertain if their posture has been impaired by bowing to wind, snow and sleet. Most likely the narrow, pyramidal evergreens which are used as accent points in foundation plantings suffered this past winter from the heavy snow and ice which weighted down their tops. In extreme cases the tops of such trees may have been broken, but in most instances it will be found that such evergreens have lost their erect carriage and become "stoop shouldered" from bending submissively before the weather.

To restore proper posture to this type of evergreen, and to keep them from becoming bent or broken next winter, wire columnar evergreens to the house or wall against which they are growing, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Two such braces may be necessary, one towards the bottom of the tree, and another towards the top. Run heavy wire through sections of rubber hose, the latter to prevent injury to the bark of the tree, then anchor the wire to heavy screw eyes on the side of the house.

Strong sunlight will also cause columnar evergreens to grow in a leaning position, thus marring their appearance. When this happens they should be straightened by the use of guy wires so they will again grow in erect position, thus emphasizing the vertical lines of the house against which they are planted.

Acne Stubborn Skin Ailment

By MME QUI VIVE

Acne is a stubborn trouble. It is the heaviest beauty burden that youth has to bear. It often results in self-consciousness and a restricted social life. The victims brood about this misfortune, avoid their friends, fall into a state of tragic misery. Parents should be sympathetic, understanding and helpful. If home care and remedies fail, the child should have medical attention. A man who specializes in diseases of the skin should be consulted.

In a survey that was made not long ago it was found that 70 per cent of acne cases were unable to satisfactorily digest proteins and sweets. A large number suffered from constipation. All of which means that the mother should acquire information concerning the balanced diet, give the child a variety of foods, prepare each dish carefully so that it is appetizing. Poorly cooked food is responsible for a lot of family troubles.

Green salads and fruit juices act favorably upon the digestive organs. Spinach is recommended when the intestinal tract is sluggish. Apples and oranges are health-giving stimulants.

Acne begins with distended pores that are packed with sebaceous oil that has hardened and picked up atmospheric dust. The walls of the pores break, infection starts up, a pustule results. At the first sign of blackheads extreme care should be taken to keep the skin surface clean.

Casual washing won't do. Children give the face a lick and a promise. A complexion brush or heavy washcloth should be used, and the soap should be foamed into a rich lather. It is wise to rub in the lather with the fingertips, pinching the flesh lightly to improve circulation. Leave away the soap with warm water. Dip a heavy washcloth in hot water, give the flesh a good steaming. Moist heat dissolves the waxlike contents of the pores and heals pimples, which are small boils.

Bicarbonate of soda, dissolved in water—one teaspoonful to a cup of water—acts as a dissolvent of blackheads. Put it on with a pledget of cotton after the skin has been dried gently after the steaming treatment. Let it stay on over night.

The fewer cosmetics used the better until the skin is in normal condition. Creams are likely to spread the infection and pimples need drying agents. Powder can be used, but should not be ground into pores which are already overulcerated.

SYNOPSIS
Brooke Carter, her mother dead, her father remarried, quits as secretary to a Chatham, N. H., physician and goes to New York to set as secret-companion to wealthy Mrs. Kingsbury whom she had met while the old lady was boarding with Rod Westover's mother Grace in the New Hampshire town. Really she came to New York to be near Rod, to whom she has been engaged for four years and who has been very successful in his work for Barney Glass since he finished college three years ago. Business has kept Rod so busy that she has not seen him for three months and she is very happy when he meets her at her small hotel and takes her to dinner. She is surprised when he tells her he has moved from the cluttered apartment he shared with Jim Bartlett, a drawing South-erner who was his college room-mate and is now an accountant. He says Jim probably thinks him a snob but his advance in the business world called for better living quarters. As they dance, little squat Barney Glass and tall handsome Julian Carlton enter the restaurant. Carlton, Rod says, is a brilliant corporation lawyer. She will meet them both at a cocktail party Barney is giving. Rod tells her. As Rod says he must work the next night, she has dinner with Jim. Hesitatingly he tells her about Irene Davies, a wealthy divorced woman many years older than Rod. Jim says Rod still loves Brooke but Mrs. Davies is deeply interested in him. She meets Irene at Barney's party and knows she is in love with Rod. Mrs. Kingsbury comes to New York.

CHAPTER VIII
Brooke sat down in the faded cretonne covered chair beside the bed and considered seriously what she had failed as yet to consider at all—the task of being Mrs. Kingsbury's secretary and companion. The self-lecture began and ended with a series of don'ts. But it was impossible to do more than scratch the surface, having only scratched the surface of the personality and character of the old lady during a few weeks several summers ago.
A light lap at her door and Brooke crossed the room and opened it.
"She'll see you" Ellen said.
Mrs. Kingsbury's room, large, airy, sunny, was furnished with massive mahogany pieces. Mrs. Kingsbury, a pink woolen bed jacket half concealing the high-necked, long-sleeved old-fashioned nightgown, sat upright in the bed, her breakfast tray on her lap. A green down comfort concealed her spare frame. Her color was good, her rather abundant white hair was piled high and held fast by a knot, gold-rimmed spectacles rested on an aquiline nose, and her thin lips were drawn to a grim straight line. Brooke thought, "Why, she's just like any other New England housewife." Surprising, that, after so many years of luxury and travel. It occurred to the girl too, and for the first time, that perhaps Mrs. Kingsbury had formed a habit for change which she could not break.

"Good morning, Brooke," the old lady said stiffly, looking her up and down.
"Good morning, Mrs. Kingsbury." She did not know where to begin.
"If you'll sit down," she said with a bored look as if this were something which must be borne.
Brooke sat down. The old lady surveyed her coolly and said, "I'm always at my best in the morning. So we'll attend to my correspondence and business at this hour. If you'll hand me the portfolio from the dresser . . . You'll find note paper and a pencil on the desk."
At the end of two hours Brooke not only knew more about Mrs. Kingsbury's business but more about the lady herself. These details of her life were attended to not as a pleasure but as a duty, accompanied by many sighs. The people to whom she wrote were, Brooke guessed, women like herself, widowed, wealthy, alone and homeless, products of years of wandering. In the letters were many complaints of the climate and food. But several times Brooke saw a tired wistfulness in the old lady's eyes.
To a man in Baltimore, who obviously owed her money, she wrote a cryptic, demanding note, murmuring, "If only the people who owe me would pay me! I'm too soft. That's the trouble with me."
Brooke as yet could detect no softness, only a passion for duty and method. Her frugality and her belief that she was being duped were evident. The high cost of living disturbed her, and the cost of repairs to her car were beyond her comprehension. Brooke wondered if she were as wealthy as the imaginations of Chatham made her. She was frugal too with words, and her attitude toward Brooke was aloof, impersonal. And since Brooke was certain that Mrs. Kingsbury's habits were the same from New Hampshire to Cairo, she wondered what was behind her desire to spend the remainder of the winter in New York.
At last the old lady said, "There's a portable typewriter there in the closet. Take it to your room. And this afternoon I'm expecting my lawyer and I won't need you."
"Shall I get some books for you?"
"Books?" She brightened a little. "Yes! And . . . that's all. And tell Ellen that I'd like some ice cream for my lunch. Chocolate." Giving Brooke a frozen smile of dismissal, she added again, "That's all."
During luncheon she did not appear and Ellen talked quietly as she served.
"Her husband had asthma," she said. "They were always looking for a place where he could breathe. It was hard on her."

When Ellen said, "I hope you'll stay," Brooke suspected that there had been other secretary-companions who had not. However, the knowledge of Mrs. Kingsbury's personality and character was important to her only in that she must serve them for a few months. Questions to Ellen concerning herself revealed that Ellen had raised two generations of ungrateful Boston Smiths, then had been cruelly "let out" five years ago and an advertisement led her to Mrs. Kingsbury. Smiling, Ellen said, "I'd always wanted to go to Europe."
After two days Brooke knew that the sight of beautiful things and places had obviously left no stamp upon Mrs. Kingsbury's practical mind. As she had driven through the country with her employ the previous day, Mrs. Kingsbury was not aware of the beauty of stark trees against a blue winter sky, but of the fact that the houses were in need of paint and that Francis, the swarthy little chauffeur who spoke five languages, was driving too fast. Upright she had sat, the collar of her seal coat buttoned high, an antiquated black hat on her white head. It was not to see that she went, Brooke thought, but just to be going . . .
After three days of self-discipline and service, Brooke welcomed Rod's coming with joy. Dressed in a new black suit and a white silk blouse, a year-old but still good, she joined Mrs. Kingsbury for dinner. For only in the evening did the old lady come to the small diningroom.
"You're going out?" she asked.
Brooke took her place and smiled between the tall brass candlesticks.
"Didn't Mrs. Westover tell you that I am going to marry her son?"
"Yes, yes, she did. I'd forgotten." Wistfulness in the gray eyes again though her voice was sharp. "You're too young to get married."
"I'm twenty-one."
"Still a child. Nothing but a child."
"Would you like to meet Rod? He's coming at nine."
"Very well. I'll come out to meet him."
To look him over, Brooke thought.
For an hour she read a blood-curdling mystery story, the old lady listening attentively. She liked a challenge to the sharpness of her mind. Brooke thought. For twice during the reading she was interrupted by, "Do you think he did it?" Brooke feigned both interest and ignorance.

Her heart stopped and started crazily when she returned to the livingroom and Rod arose to greet her.
"Darling . . ."
He looked amused. She said, "Wait." She hurried to Mrs. Kingsbury's room and followed her back into the livingroom.
Mrs. Kingsbury was aloof and formal and after a short time returned to her room.
Outside in the cold night air Brooke took Rod's arm, feeling that she was out of bondage.
In a quiet restaurant she recalled the happenings of the past three days, for him, saying, "She isn't so terrible, really. Just inhibited. She gives nothing out. I like to think of old people being mellow and wise and tolerant. Ellen, her maid, is. She was telling me how beautiful Italy is." Loving the sight of his dear dark head and eyes, wanting his voice more than the sound of her own, she said, "Let's not talk about it any more."
She was too happy to realize that it was a patronizing pat he gave her hand.
"You should have friends here, Brooke."
"I could call Mrs. Davies."
She sensed his uneasiness at once. "You could but — but I don't think I'd advise it. She's a good bit older than you and . . ."
She smiled, said lightly, "Do you think she'd look down on me because my position is somewhat of a servant?"

"Good heavens, don't say that!" Have you seen her since Saturday, Rod? Questions and conflicts, temporarily put aside while she accustomed herself to Mrs. Kingsbury's methodical menace, arose again.
She said almost gaily, "This job lasts only until June and then I shall probably get another where I shall get to know all the girls."
"I can get you a place, I'm sure, if you want to stay . . ."
She thought, "You could marry me, Rod." She said, "I believe I have come to stay. To go back would be regretting. Besides, I want to be near you."
"Darling . . ."
The restaurant was empty now except for them.
"I love you . . ."
"I've never doubted it. And it's more than I deserve."
"Not more than you're worthy of." It was so good to speak the words that were in her heart.
They talked about his work, his mother, home, and danced a little. It was he who mentioned that it was getting late. Coming only motion pictures the old lady would see were those of high adventure and that, by brief remarks half-mumbled, she had a deep sympathy for her own sex and a deep distrust of the opposite sex. One word uttered one morning when, sitting in bed, she heard Brooke read a polite letter from a man in Baltimore who regretted that he could not pay her the money he owed her, proved Brooke's suspicions that either Mrs. Kingsbury had once had an unhappy love affair or an unhappy marriage. For the old lady had lifted her voice to utter vehemently, "Men!"

To Brooke she was neither kind nor unkind but as the days went on, she entrusted more of her affairs to her so that by the end of the first month she knew that although Mrs. Kingsbury's income fell far below the imagi-
